"NO SUCH WORD AS FAIL" FOR THE NEW RAILROAD

Mr. E. A. Hill, the popular railroad promoter, arrived in the city this morning to look after matters pertaining to the road. When seen by a News reporter he was as genial and hopeful as ever.

Our people may now be assured that the new railway, the K. C. L. & P., which recently acquired by merger the Canadian Midland railroad, will be built and trains in operation from Wagoner and Muskogee to the Ft. Worth and Denver City across Red river, on schedule time. The authoritative statement of the route of the road noting objective points as follows was confirmed by Mr. Hill, Assistant General Manager, in a manner leaving no mistake: Wagoner, Porter, Haskell to McKennon, a new town west of Muskogee, at the Twin Mounds, from which point a line of the road extends into Muskogee. From McKennon the line converging at that junction runs south via Beggs, Deep Fork, Hampton, Arbeka, Wewoka, from which latter point a branch named in the charter "Branch line No. 1 in the Indian Territory," will build to Dustin via Wetumka. From Wewoka the main line penetrates due southward to Sasakwa to Ada, from which city the route is due west through Pauls Valley, a new town recently acquired east of Marlow, through Marlow, Lawton and Frederick to the Ft. Worth & Denver City in Texas at the point of crossing that line and the Kansas City, Mexico & Orient.

Mr. Hill exhibited to the editor a certified copy of the bond contract between the brokerage firm of W. K. Burton Company of New York, New Orleans and Memphis, and his principals, but did not make the terms of the contract public further than was necessary to positively confirm the route and the objective points and to prove that the bonds were actually placed at only 2 1-2c on the dollar below full value.

THE CITY SCHOOLS OPEN ON MONDAY MORNING

Monday morning the small boy will resurrect his school satchel from its dusty hiding place and once more take up his daily pilgrimage to the temple of learning. Again will the schoolroom become vibrant with the hum of the children, the halls resound with their merry laughter and the deserted playground be trampled clear of its weeds.

The scholastic year begins auspiciously in Ada: Following is the efficient corps of teachers for our public schools:

M. L. Perkins, superintendent.
South School—L. J. Berry, principal High school; Miss Beulah Stovall, Eighth grade and High school, English; Miss Annie Scales, sixth and seventh grades; Mrs. M. L. Perkins, fourth and fifth grades; Miss Birdie Sims, third grade; Miss Nell Guyn, second grade; Miss Mildred Timberlake, high first grade; Miss Villa Wilson, low first grade.

SITUATION IN ISLAND GROWING YET DARKER

Havana, Aug. 31.—The situation is far darker tonight than at any previous time since the insurrection broke out. News of an uprising in Santiago province, while not yet published here, is spreading about the city and causing the greatest concern. When Mr. Sleeper, the American charge d'affaires here, was told the contents of the Associated Press Santiago dispatch, he endeavored to verify it through the state department, but was told it was absolutely untrue. Subsequently the dispatch was verified from private and newspaper sources.

The extent of the uprising in Santiago is not known, but it is known that one of the worst calamities of all to the Palma government would be the insurrection in Eastern Cuba.

The increasing gravity of the situation has revived discussion of the possibility of intervention by the United States. La Discussion, the semi-official organ of the administration, in an editorial this evening calls upon Cubans to down their arms and save the republic from the danger of intervention. The article appeals to the patriotism of the people, depicting the results of intervention as follows:

"Permanent intervention would be worse than death. It would be preferable if the Caribbean sea would engulf the Pearl of the Antilles."

WHICH CONTAINS MOST?

Banquet Bet on Population of Two Territories.

Guthrie, Ok.—There is a difference of almost 100,000 between the estimated populations of Oklahoma and Indian Territory as shown by the statistics compiled by the respective district apportionment boards. The question of population caused much friendly argument among members of the board. A truce was reached in an agreement whereby Judge W. H. H. Clayton is to be the host at a banquet of the two boards if the election of constitutional delegates should show Oklahoma to have the larger population, while Charles Filson, territorial secretary, will be host if Indian Territory should have the largest population. As the stipulations include champagne—for ornamental purposes—the banquet will probably be served in Oklahoma.

Each Indian Territory district is supposed to have a population of about 13,500, which would make a total population of about 740,000 for Indian Territory. The estimate of the Oklahoma board is approximately 12,000 inhabitants in each district as formed, making the population of Oklahoma 660,000, or 80,000 less than Indian Territory.

THE POOR MAN HAS SMALL CHANCE AT HOMESTEADS

Lawton, Ok., Sept. 1.—Should the Interior Department decide to dispose of the big pasture and the other Indian reserve to be opened to settlement this fall by sealed bids, as it seems they are going to, the poor man will have little chance of getting the choicest of the land.

Provisions will have to be made whereby the bidder can show that he is a qualified homesteader at the time he makes his bid. This will be made out in blank form and accompany the bid and will then be passed upon by the Interior Department before his bid is considered. A certain percentage of the bidding price must accompany the bid. The exact per cent has not been determined by the department. A poor man will not have the means to bid on more than one or two tracts of land if he is required to put up a forfeit for each bid submitted, especially when he is required to advance one-fifth of the price at the time he qualifies.

Many questions are now being considered by the General Land Office officials since the plans of selling the reserve has been changed from the auction to the sealed bid plan. In case one prospective homesteader should be the high man on two quarter-sections of land it will then be necessary to declare the second highest bidder the successful entryman to the second piece, providing he is qualified to enter. But in the case that the first and second bidder should be disqualified because they have been awarded other land, then the question arises, would a lower man get the land?

The General Land Office is already aware of many problems to work out, in preparing the revised regulations since it is the decision of the Secretary to sell by sealed bids. There are 3,156 quarter sections to be thrown open under these provisions, and it is estimated by the General Land Office that there will be ten bids to the homestead, making a total of 30,000 papers that will have to be examined and passed on by the officials of that department.

The Interior Department has made known the report of the appraisers who were sent here to appraise the Duncan pasture.

The leases were assessed at an average of $12.60, making the lease cost on an average of $1,600. The values ranged from $800 to $4,260 for the 160 acres, these figures including improvements placed thereon. As the most of this land is good farming soil the prices are considered equitable in all cases.

Men and Mules Killed by Lightning.

Elk City, Ok., Sept. 1.—J. S. Marsham, traveling overland from Portales, N. M., reported here today the finding of two dead men sitting upright in their wagon, near Kenna, and four mules dead in their harness. The men have been identified as Victor and Tom Simpson, living near Alida. They were killed by lightning while driving.

STAD NEW ENGLAND ALSO GOES WILD OVER BRYAN

New Haven, Conn., Sept. 1.—The visit of William Jennings Bryan to Connecticut yesterday must have strongly reminded him of the strenuous days during his Presidential campaign, for he delivered four addresses, each of considerable length, attended two receptions and was the center of handshaking bees whenever his admirers could reach him. This was crowded into the hours between noon, when he reached this city, and his retirement at night at Bridgeport.

Everywhere he was heartily received, although there was an absence of street demonstrations both here and in Bridgeport. His audiences, however, were wildly enthusiastic, especially at the noon luncheon here. The features of the day were luncheon and the conference of New England Democrats. At the former Mr. Bryan was welcomed to the city and state and at the latter he stood before a representative body of New England Democrats and with great earnestness spoke of the problems which the party must face in the coming campaigns. Mr. Bryan said in the course of his address that New England never had been a "good breeding place for Democracy; Jefferson had never so considered it; neither did Jackson."

A delay at the start of Mr. Bryan's trip caused an overlapping of the three meetings here, to the disappointment of many. The mass meeting on the green here had to be started before the luncheon was actually over, and the Democratic conference was not completed until it was time for Mr. Bryan to deliver his third address of the day.

The chief change in the program was the inclusion of former Governor Garvin, of Rhode Island, as one of the open air speakers, as the address that he had prepared for the luncheon had been ruled as being too political. Mr. Garvin spoke at the luncheon here, paying a tribute to the uprightness of Mr. Bryan.

Mr. Bryan left New Haven for Bridgeport shortly before 6 o'clock, addressing an audience in the evening at the armory. His addresses at the mass meetings were along the lines of his speech at Madison Square Garden Thursday night.

This morning Mr. Bryan will return to New York. Most of the members of his party who were with him yesterday left for their homes last night.

DON'T WANT PHONETIC SPELLING INTRODUCED

Washington, Sept. 1.—Teachers, as well as parents, and possibly pupils, in the District of Columbia are greatly wrought up over the announcement of Superintendent Chancellor of the District schools that phonetic spelling will be taught in the schools of this city. The teachers, it is said, had laughingly discussed the subject, little thinking that the superintendent would ever seriously consider introducing the system. He has only recently come to Washington.

Dr. Chancellor says the reform is in the direction of improvement of the orthography of the language and of the language itself by the simplification of the spelling, which has been the stumbling block of foreigners who have attempted to overcome the difficulties of English "as she is spelt." Pupils are to be allowed to choose whether they shall use the old system or the system of Carnegie-Roosevelt. The teachers say that to use the phonetic system would be almost an impossibility, especially as the text books, which are translations from the old German and French writers, would have to be changed so as to conform to the new, and what one of them termed "the crazy" system. It would be manifestly impossible, the teachers contend, to allow the advanced grades, which have accomplished the victory over the old methods, to cling to it, while the junior grades would be allowed to adopt the new. They would have to learn the old also when they reached the more advanced grades. In any case it would be necessary to rewrite the text books, the new form of spelling to be used by those who adopt that form and the old form to be retained for those who might wish to cling to the present orthography.

OVERDRAFTS

It is becoming well known by business men that overdrafts, whether large or small, are not approved by the comptroller of the currency. The large central banks allow overdrafts only in a very small way, and this, it matters not how small, is not approved by the powers that be. This unbusinesslike habit of overdrafts grew out of advancing on moving products, such as cotton, grain and fat stock on the move. The overdraft system is wrong and the man whose account is always overdrawn is the man who spends more money than he makes and will finally have no bank account.

One of the big railroad companies of the United States recently placed in Paris a loan of $50,000,000. There are reports to the effect that another large railroad corporation is seeking to negotiate a similar loan. The money in both cases is for betterments demanded by increased and increasing traffic. It does not look as though the railroads, which are pretty good barometers, anticipate any serious setback to the prevailing prosperity.

Dr. Calmette and M. C. Guerin, of the Pasteur Institute, of Lille, France, have just communicated to the French Academy of Sciences the results of experiments in vaccinating against infection with tuberculosis. They find, says the London Times, that if they cause a calf or kid to swallow at 45 days' interval two doses of 5 and 25 centigrams of dead bacilli of tuberculosis, or bacilli of weak vitality, the animal becomes proof against infections of fresh bovine tuberculosis. Human beings have not yet been experimented on with the virus, but it is thought that it may prove effective.

Mr. Haldane, the British minister of war, has had his attention strongly directed to the one defect in the army system; that is, that it turns a discharged soldier into the world at an age when he has lost his adaptiveness and when without a trade he finds himself at a great disadvantage in competing with younger men. Therefore, Mr. Haldane has appointed a committee to consider the training of the soldiers in various trades. It is believed that something can be found in this way which will be better for the ex-soldier than the present system.

The extension of manual training so that every boy would have an opportunity to fit himself for a trade would make the problem of parents much easier of solution, says the Pittsburgh Dispatch. Boys instead of being set at work as doers of odd jobs, wasting the years when they should be qualifying themselves for work as journeymen, should be given a chance to prepare themselves for their life work. The great number of youths anxious to take advantage of the opportunity offered by the Carnegie schools proves the need.

Cold tubs for dogs is the latest hygienic rule in Germany. It has been discovered that dogs contract certain affections of the skin and communicate them to human beings. From this fact the necessity of cleanliness and frequent washing is deduced. Special bathing establishments for dogs, with specially constructed baths to obviate tubs or other receptacles into which dogs object to be lifted, are being built in many towns, and are widely patronized. The last has just been opened in Dresden.

TOOK GIRL AS HIS REWARD.

Youth's Choice May Have Been Wise, Under the Circumstances.

Senator Beveridge was condemning a notoriously corrupt and notoriously plausible capitalist.

"The man speaks well," said Senator Beveridge. "He promises much. If he acted as he talked, he would be famous for his goodness. But, alas! he is like the German who nearly lost his daughter."

"This German, with his daughter, was walking beside a deep stream on a summer afternoon when the young girl slipped on a stone, fell in. And she would have drowned but for the prompt bravery of a youth. He, slipping off coat and shoes, plunged in, and after four or five minutes of hard work, brought the girl safe ashore."

"The old German father was transported. 'Noble-minded youth,' said he, 'we do, indeed, owe you a debt of gratitude. A hundred thousand marks or my daughter's hand—choose! Which shall it be?'

"The youth, who was no less wise than brave, thought to himself that if he took the daughter he would some day get the money also, and, accordingly, without a moment's hesitation, he made answer:

"I choose your daughter."

"A wise choice," said the old father. "I could not have given you the 100,000 marks, for I am a poor cobbler; but you shall have the girl, and that gladly. Join hands, dear children, and receive my blessing."

AMERICAN WINNER, AS USUAL.

Upheld Greatness of His Native Country and Retained His Bank Roll.

A Frenchman, a German, an Englishman and an American were sitting before an open fire, each one telling of the greatness of his native country.

While speaking the Frenchman took from his wallet a dollar bill, rolled it up, touched it to the coals, and lighted a cigar with it.

The others were impressed, and soon the German opened his wallet, brought forth a ten-dollar bill, rolled it up, touched it to the coals, and lighted his cigar with it.

The Englishman thought it very foolish, but he could not be outdone, nor have it appear that England was not, as ever, the richest of all, so he calmly took a $100 bill and sacrificed it to light his cigar.

The American looked on in wonder. He hadn't even a dollar bill with him, and yet he knew he represented the leading race of all—which was never outwitted nor outdone by anyone or any country; so he quietly drew forth a checkbook, wrote a check for $10,000 on a prominent New York bank, duly signed it, rolled it up, touched it to the coals, and lighted his cigar with it, while his confederates watched him curiously and intently.—Ladies' Home Journal.

Sea Cow's Back as Marking Pad.

People who visited the zoo greatly annoyed the keeper of the sea cow, a new acquisition, by poking it with canes or pencils. Exhausted by his efforts to stop the practice, he engaged a tramp for 50 cents and told him to keep track of how many people looked at the manatee. At six o'clock the keeper looked up his substitute.

"There's been more than 5,000 people here," said the latter. "I haven't time to reckon up the exact number yet, and won't until I audit up my books."

"Where's the paper you kept your accounts on?" asked Stephen, the keeper.

"I didn't have any paper," answered the hobo, as if proud of his ingenuity, "but I had a good soft lead pencil and kept tab on the sea cow's back."

He pointed to the patient manatee, the back of which resembled a blackboard in a country schoolhouse after the annual examination.—Cincinnati Correspondence Cleveland Leader.

Question for Botanists.

It has often been observed that any sudden change in the superficial character of the soil is rapidly followed by an alteration in the nature of the plants growing thereon, new species appearing where the ground has hitherto been a stranger to them. Very many farmers, foresters and scientific men—among others the French botanist Poisson—are inclined to attribute this phenomenon to the retention by seeds, bulbs or spores of a former growth of vegetation in a quiescent state, these seeds and growths retaining their powers of germination even after several other successive crops of plants have grown above them.

Not His Fault, Though.

"It is a very fine thing to be brave and generous and noble," said Bliss Perry, the writer, editor and Harvard teacher, "but sometimes we are generous and noble against our will. Then, of course, we deserve no credit."

"Of this type was a young married man whose father-in-law, a reputed millionaire, burst in on him one day and growled:

"All is lost! I am utterly ruined!"

"Ahem," said the son-in-law; "then I married for love, after all."

Seasonable Entertainments and Suggestions for Social Functions

By EDITH A. BROWN

Society Editor of the Chicago Record-Herald.

Appropriate Entertainment for Early Autumn—Horn of Plenty, Fruit and Grains for Decoration—A "Live Magazine" for Home, Church or Club Affairs—Young People Pose to Represent Title, Frontispiece, Advertisements and Book Reviews.

Along about this time of the year the farmers are gathering in the last of their grain, apples and other fruits are being stowed away for the winter's use, and vegetables, too, have reached their climax. It is the season of plenty, and a "harvest dinner" not only will be apropos, but very easily arranged. Not many guests should be bidden, for the service naturally must be plentiful, and too many guests will bring too great a display of food to be appetizing. As nearly as possible have a representative of all the fruits, vegetables and grains on the table, either in decoration or actual service.

For the table decoration have a horn of plenty filled with fruits, and hung from the chandelier. Immediately beneath arrange a mound or bouquet of the grains—wheat, oats and the like. On the stem of each fruit which is placed in the central horn of plenty tie a narrow ribbon, which will lead to a cover. At the "cover" end of the ribbon a paper horn of plenty with the name of guest written thereon or a tiny horn of plenty, with the name thrust in the horn, may be used as the place card.

For the first course serve watermelon in the old-fashioned southern or farm style. Cut the melon lengthwise, not removing the rind before serving. Chicken or tomato soup may follow, with all the relishes of the season. For August the fish course may be omitted, if desired, and the meat course may follow the soup. For this serve crown of lamb with mint sauce. Shirred potatoes, green peas and corn boiled on the cob and replaced in the original husk for serving, will serve as the vegetables for this course. Pineapple or raspberry sherbet, likewise, will make a good dish for the meat course. The salad should be a combination of all the fresh vegetables, sliced together and served with French or mayonnaise dressing, the French preferred.

The dessert course may be frozen peaches, cakes and coffee, and for the very last bring in a great plate of the early nuts. Then ask the guests to pull the ribbons bearing their place cards, and the fruit from the horn of plenty will come tumbling to their places. As the table will be cleared except for the plate of nuts, no damage can be done, and conjecture will be rife as to what each one will draw from the horn of plenty for the final course. The same idea in decoration—the horns of plenty and the use of grain and fruit—may be carried out throughout the rooms of the house, if desired.

A Literary Evening.

The ever-new but old idea of the magazine as a means of entertainment may be arranged in a somewhat new form for a summer's evening at a home church or club affair. Starting with the old idea of erecting a frame for the posing of the contents of the magazine, name the publication according to the place wherein you reside or to the event to be considered. Announce the issue as the late summer book number.

Friends of the host and hostess, or young people of the town, should be dressed and posed to represent some well-known books, and the object will be to make the guests guess the titles from the living pictures. The first picture, of course, will announce the title of the magazine merely. If the affair is to be used as a money-making scheme, local advertisements may be used at intervals, but if not, the book number should begin at once. The frontispiece of the magazine may be one of the book titles, or it may be the photograph of a very well-known author or poet. The guests must write the name of the man or woman shown on the paper which has been furnished each, as the first answer.

As the magazine is to be made the chief feature of the evening, some 15 or 20 pictures should be shown.

For the first Tarkington's "The Beautiful Lady" may be shown as a sweet-faced, white-haired old lady—an old-fashioned grandmother. A dashing young woman, too, might be used to represent this title, but no two people bear the same ideas as to real beauty, whereas the old lady of the type mentioned appeals to all.

Major's "When Knighthood Was in Flower" can be made into a beautiful living picture—a young man in colonial costume, kissing the hand of a maiden in the costume of the same period—a bit of gallantry which is well-nigh obsolete in this day.

Another of Tarkington's—"The Gentleman from Indiana," can be used as the first bit of comedy in the magazine—a typical Hoosier may be shown, with pencil and pad, bringing out the idea of the "state of authors," as Indiana is known.

Connor's "The Prospector" may be the means of showing a picture of a true wild western miner with pick and shovel.

Wister's "The Virginian" may picture the man of the plains in his most romantic dress, or the typical old Virginia gentleman may be shown to represent this stirring title.

Barrie's "Little Minister" is too suggestive a title to need aid in posing, and so, likewise, is Mrs. Gray's "Heavenly Twins," although both will be capital for the magazine.

Long's "Madame Butterfly" will make an effective picture—a dainty maiden dressed in Japanese costume, with butterflies in her hair, on the paper flower bushes which may grow about her, and in the design of her dress. This idea, too, might be worked out in the modern society matron, but the picture would not be as pretty.

Connor's "Man from Glengarry" brings in another type—the lumberman; and Doyle's "Study in Scarlet" may produce a Parisian dancer in her scarlet ballet dress, or a modern young woman in red will suffice as well.

Holland's "Bitter Sweet" may be the comedy vehicle again, if a pretty and otherwise sweet young woman—one known to be sweet of disposition—may be posed with a very bitter frown upon her pretty face.

Miss Johnston's "To Have and to Hold" is ideal for a mother and child picture—a reproduction of Mrs. Vonnoh's little statuette of a young mother holding her babe would be most attractive.

Parker's "Seats of the Mighty" may be an empty throne, and Rostand's "Cyrano" will make an excellent character picture.

More fun may be produced by Herick's "The Common Lot," or Doyle's "Sign of the Four." The first may picture a man perched on a high stool in front of a desk covered with papers. With a pencil behind each ear he is "digging" away with might and main. The last may be worked out by posing four folk with talent for pantomime.

Caine's "The Christian" may show another old lady picture—an elderly woman, seated with her Bible in her lap.

"Under the Red Robe" is easily illustrated, while "Under Two Flags" will make an attractive military picture. The series may close with Miss Schirner's "Black Beauty," showing a young man or woman with blackened face, and dressed in the very height of fashion, which may serve as the last funny picture, and Miss Alcott's "Old-Fashioned Girl," which needs no description, as the final "sweet young girl" picture.

When the magazine has come to an end, each guest writes his or her name on the slip of paper which has been given them for their answers, and the slips are exchanged among the guests for examination. Then the index of the magazine appears as the last leaf, and the papers are corrected. The most successful contestant is given a late novel or some attractive book, and the "Funny Dictionary" will serve as a booby prize.

What He Would Say.

The late Francis Coggin for a long time was a director of the Indian Head National bank, Nashua, N. H. During the last years of his directorship the present cashier, Ira F. Harris, was at the head of the institution.

It was Mr. Coggin's custom to visit the bank daily, and invariably as he opened the door he would say, in tones that could be heard all over the bank: "Is Ira in?" Mr. Harris grew very tired of this, much to the amusement of the rest of the bank. Finally the phrase came to be a by-word with them.

During the summer preceding his death Mr. Coggin looked very bad, but was able to get out and make his usual visits to the bank. One hot day in July the clerks were sweating over their work, when in walked Mr. Coggin, with his usual salutation: "Is Ira in?"

"Yes," said Mr. Harris, "I am here. It's a pretty hot day, isn't it?"

"Hot! You don't call this hot, do you? You ought to have been with me one summer down in Georgia." And Mr. Coggin proceeded to tell what hot weather really was.

After he had gone out Mr. Harris spoke up as follows: "Doesn't Mr. Coggin look bad? I am afraid it won't be long before he will be where the weather will be hot enough for him."

"Yes," piped up the correspondence clerk, "and the first thing that he will say when he opens the door will be: 'Is Ira in?'"—Boston Herald.

Unanimous.

The late Lord Leighton, president of the Royal academy, once had a chance to learn something about himself that perhaps he had not suspected. His chance came to him at a picture-gallery, where his painting, "Helen of Troy," was on exhibition.

He joined a group of ladies who were standing before it just in time to hear one of the number say:

"It is a horrid picture, simply horrid."

"I'm sorry, but it's mine!" Lord Leighton exclaimed, involuntarily.

"You don't mean to say you've bought the thing?" questioned the same lady.

"No, I—painted it," the artist humbly replied.

The critical lady was momentarily abashed; then she said, easily:

"Oh, you mustn't mind what I say."

"No, indeed, you mustn't," another began, earnestly. "She only said what everybody else is saying!"—Youth's Companion.

Two Bon Voyage Gifts.

For a young boy who was going to Europe for six months a girl friend made this charming gift whereby many an hour was happily spent, and it provided amusement not only for him, but the grown-ups in the party enjoyed it quite as much.

It was a blank book, the first pages containing 90 cleverly illustrated book "titles." The "key" to this was given to the lad's mother. Then there were a number of pages ruled off forming a diary, covering the months of the journey.

After this came snap shots of his own house, the street on which he lived and of the children who were his playmates and friends. There were valentines from these chums, also Easter cards, April fool jokes and fourth of July souvenirs. The special pages were tied together with "not to be opened till the date," written on the page preceding, and the boy's birthday pages were concealed in the same manner. The other "going away" gift was arranged for a baby of three years, who was to make the long month's voyage to South America, and a friend provided a huge ball of worsted, with the instructions to unwind one "surprise" a day. The ball contained all sorts of little novelties, a top, dolls of various kinds, a tiny bottle of perfume, a gay handkerchief, knife, pair of round-pointed scissors, small boxes of odd shapes filled with bonbons, toy animals, and a coarse needle, threaded, and a number of large-headed buttons.

The mother said the "surprise ball" was reserved until everything else failed, then it provided amusement; and the last article was unwound as the steamer went into the harbor of Rio Janeiro, and life assumed a new interest in that strange land.

A Lawn Party.

Lawn parties for grown people and children are the popular form of amusement these days, and certainly there is nothing prettier in the entertainment line. With an abundance of lanterns, fairy lamps and electric lights, a comparatively small yard may be transformed into a bower of beauty, especially if the house has large porches. Japanese screens and porch awnings protect from the gaze of the public, and huge paper umbrellas fastened to stout sticks driven into the ground make most picturesque shades for lemonade and frappe bowls.

Spread rugs about, with settees conveniently placed, and if there is room have a platform for the young people to dance. A few stringed instruments, the players concealed by palms or shrubbery, add greatly to the occasion. If there is dancing, paste the numbers or write them on small fans, attaching a pencil by ribbon or cord to the handle. At the "Jap" stores long garlands for decorative purposes may be purchased. They are made of paper and are new and attractive. A cotillion with "Jap" favors would be lovely danced on the lawn. Square dances, the quadrilles, reels and fancy figures are all especially good for out-of-door parties.

There seems to be no end to musical games. Here is a particularly clever one, somewhat different from the ones which have previously appeared. On cards or slips of paper write the following questions:

1. Where is the earth?
2. An old man's friend?
3. What do the weary need?
4. A useful article to cook?
5. Found plentifully in most rivers?
6. Part of a fish?
7. An important part of a letter?
8. What title is coveted by military men?
9. What do all public speakers do some time?
10. Not served in barrooms?
11. The most popular music with debutantes?
12. What locks the stable when the horse is gone?
13. The one who guesses the most answers?

BEAUTY AND EXERCISE

Plenty of Time for Exercise in Cool of Summer Day—What Makes for Grace.

The body needs air, exercise and rest, food, play and sleep during the warm days of summer as well as the cold days of winter; during the crisp, sparkling days of the late fall as well as the half sultry and wholly languorous days of the spring. The exercise, to be sure, should not be so violent and should have much of the real pleasure element in it, but it should be exercise and taken daily.

The time for it should also be wisely chosen during the warm days, for from the hours of eleven to three or four it is well to rest and the hammock, cool corner of the porch or shady nook in orchard or grove tempts one to settle down with book, fancy work or friends, and it is well to have plenty of such hours sprinkled generously through our summer's fun. But for bodily exercise (other than deep breathing, which may and should be indulged in at all hours and many times during the long warm days) the best time is in the early morning, when the air itself tempts one to motion, or in the late afternoon, for then it is that tennis, golf, field hockey, croquet, the bicycle, the saddle horse, the canoe or rowboat may be indulged in to the best advantage, or the long, brisk walk be taken, preceded or followed by gentle club swinging exercises and trunk bends and turnings in all directions—arm and leg swinging—chest expansion and deep breathing work.

To be able to take healthy exercise and to look your prettiest at the same time is a combination of affairs well-nigh irresistible.

Even a fair-sized city yard provides space enough for archery or quoit throwing, although hardly enough for that ancient pastime of the Greeks, which has been recently revived both in England and America—throwing the discus.

The usual athletic costume may be used for archery, although any gown in which the arms have perfect freedom of movement is as comfortable for the performance.

The muscles of the arms, shoulders, back and neck are all developed and strengthened by this sport and the hollows of the neck filled out by it.

Pitching quoits is even better than bowling as an exercise, in that, while the motions are nearly enough the same to call out practically the same muscles, it is an outdoor game. Besides the direct benefit it has upon the general health and upon the development of neck and shoulders and arms, and especially for a hollow chest, there is indirect benefit gained in added grace and buoyancy of the whole body, which becomes pliant and supple if the sport is followed with any degree of regularity.

With a little practice the left arm may be used alternately with the right for the pitching, so that both sides of the body may be developed evenly.

As to discus throwing, the very fact that it is a revival of a Grecian sport is enough to commend it as productive of grace, for the Grecian men and women have furnished the ideal types of grace for the whole world.

Like quoit pitching, wrist, back and shoulders are all strengthened by the graceful swaying into which you unconsciously fall in your endeavor to get the quoit nearest the peg.

HON. W. H. KELBAUGH OF WEST VIRGINIA PRAISES PE-RU-NA.

Hon. W. H. Kelbaugh.

A Cold at Any Time of the Year. Especially in Hot Weather, is Very Depressing to the System. Pe-ru-na is an Unequaled Tonic For Such Cases. Read What People Say About It.

Hon. W. H. Kelbaugh, Ex-Member W. Va. Legislature, 204 9th street, N. E., Washington, D. C., writes:

"You can use my name and word at all times for Pe-ru-na as a medicine and tonic unequalled. I have tried it for a stubborn cold and badly run down system. I tried all sorts of other medicines and paid several expensive doctor bills. Pe-ru-na cured me, strengthened me more than ever, and saved me money."

Mrs. Clara Litterst, Seaford, Ind., says: "Last fall I took a severe cold. I took Pe-ru-na, began to improve and kept on so until I was able to do my work."

Fishermen Using Motor Boats. Iceland's fishermen have taken to using motor boats in their business. Automobiles and motor boats have also made their way to Helsingfors, Finland.

For Twenty Years. Other chill remedies have sprung up, flourished for a brief season, then passed away—even from memory—but for twenty long years Cheatham's Chill Tonic has been in the field of action. The reason is simple. It has the merit. It actually cures Chills and Fevers, while the majority of others merely promise to. One bottle guaranteed to cure any one case.

SANE SENTIMENTS.

The black sheep in every family was once the most petted lamb.

Did you ever notice that the size of trouble depends on whether it is coming or going?

Beware of the man who boasts of his good deeds; he probably only awaits a favorable opportunity to do a mean one.

English the World Language.

The new world language, Esperanto, seems to have already won more advocates than the older Volapuk. No manufactured language, however, seems to have much chance in competition with English, which long ago displaced French as the most useful and widely spoken language and which is gaining faster than ever in all parts of the world. Quite recently the German government has ordered that all railway officials and employees must learn to speak English. In Antwerp also the authorities are urging all classes to study English and are providing special facilities in the public schools; the city has become "almost an English-speaking port." In Japan all school children are now obliged to learn our language. A few years hence tourists from this country will be able to get along there as easily as on a trip at home. With Great Britain, India, Australia, Canada, the United States and large sections of Africa using English, what hope is there for any other language?

"NO TROUBLE"

to Change from Coffee to Postum.

"Postum has done a world of good for me," writes an ill. man.

"I've had indigestion nearly all my life but never dreamed coffee was the cause of my trouble until last Spring I got so bad I was in misery all the time."

"A coffee drinker for 30 years, it irritated my stomach and nerves, yet I was just crazy for it. After drinking it with my meals, I would leave the table, go out and lose my meal and the coffee too. Then I'd be as hungry as ever."

"A friend advised me to quit coffee and use Postum—said it cured him. Since taking his advice I retain my food and get all the good out of it, and don't have those awful hungry spells. 'I changed from coffee to Postum without any trouble whatever, felt better from the first day I drank it. I am well now and give the credit to Postum.' Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich. Read the little book, 'The Road to Wellville,' in pkgs. 'There's a reason.'"

MODERN SHADES OF MEANING.

Words of English Language That Have Improved with Age.

Why is a poodle so called? Some one says: "Probably the natural answer would recall the old lady who said that no credit could be given to Adam for naming the pig, since anybody would know what to call it. 'Poodle' seems so obvious a name for this dog. And, in fact, this is not far from the truth about the origin of the word. It is quite recent in English, not being found before 1864, apparently. It is the German 'pudel,' which comes from the low German, 'pudeln,' to waddle, and the dog must have been so called, as Skeat says, either because he waddles after his master or because he looks fat and clumsy on account of his thick hair."

"Nice" is one of the exceptional words which have risen on the scale and improved with age. It is from the latin "nescius" and originally signified ignorant. To Chaucer it regularly meant foolish—"wise and nothing nice." In Spenser's time it still meant effeminate. From general foolishness there was probably first a specialization to foolish fussiness about trifles. Then the idea of ignorance dropped out, and the word meant particular about details, accurate. It was creditable to be a "nice" observer or to show "nice" judgment. And so in the end the positively agreeable meaning of to-day was evolved.

"Sculls" and "skulls" are one word in origin, and both at various times have been spelled capriciously with a "c" or a "k." Pepys, the diarist, tells how he went on the Thames at one time "in a scull," at another in a "skuller." The origin of the word is "skulle," or "sculle," a bowl or goblet. While the cranium was obviously bowl-like in shape, a distant resemblance to a bowl was also detected in the scooped-out blade of a "scull," as opposed to the flat blade of our propeller.

GENTLE REMINDER FOR PAPA.

Robbie Uneasy Over Time It Took to Make Printing Press.

One day papa took Robbie down to see the presses print the books and papers and pictures, and the little boy was much interested.

"Papa," said he, "let me come down every day and run the presses."

"O, I couldn't do that," said his papa, "but maybe I'll have a little printing press made for you, just your size."

The weeks and months passed away and papa forgot all about his promise, but Robbie didn't. It was fully a year later that he came home from Sunday school and said: "Papa, teacher said that God made the world in six days. Is that so?"

"I guess it is," said papa.

"The water and the dirt and the trees, and the dogs and birds' nests, and everything?"

"Yes."

"Gee, whiz!" said Robbie, "that was quick work. Six days to make all the world, and you've been a year and ain't got that printin' press done yet!"

—The American Boy.

One Side of the Mouth.

Did you ever meet a stranger who talked from one side of his mouth, usually in an undertone and with his eyes wandering while talking? The man's manner is not an indication that he is weighing his words or has something important to tell. It is almost a sure sign that he has spent years in jail. This manner of talking is acquired in prison, where conversation among prisoners is prohibited and where the men have to talk out of one side of their mouths in order to prevent the keeper from noticing that conversation is going on. The habit sticks to the convicts for years after they get out.

Differently Expressed.

Two groups of people were seated in the waiting room of a railroad station. One consisted of a young man and two young ladies dressed in the height of fashion, the other a man and his wife not so fashionably attired.

They had been there only a few minutes when a girl came in whose complexion was as nearly perfect as anything in this world ever is. While she was buying her ticket the young man remarked to the ladies with him: "Isn't Miss Cransford a beauty? Her complexion is as perfect as a rose."

At the same time the other man clutched his wife's arm and whispered:

"Lord, Nan, hasn't that gal got purty hide?"—Lippincott's Magazine.

Profit in Insurance Schemes.

"The profit on all kinds of insurance is great," said a statistician. "For example, accident insurance. It is all betting, and the average bet made by the accident companies is $1,000 against $4 that you don't die by accident during the year."

"Suppose a company has 40,000,000 subscribers. Its income then is, at $4 for each $1,000 policy, $160,000,000. Statistics show that among 40,000,000 people only 15,000 die by accident. Thus the company pays out but $15,000,000, leaving a gross annual profit of $145,000,000. Insurance is a very good thing, but the rates ought to be lowered tremendously."

Youthful Training.

"Every boy should learn to swim." "I don't know," answered the man who cultivates differences of opinion. "The boy who can't swim keeps away from deep water. I'd rather have my boy put in his time practicing the art of dodging trolley cars and automobiles."

What Joy They Bring To Every Home

as with joyous hearts and smiling faces they romp and play—when in health—and how conducive to health the games in which they indulge, the outdoor life they enjoy, the cleanly, regular habits they should be taught to form and the wholesome diet of which they should partake. How tenderly their health should be preserved, not by constant medication, but by careful avoidance of every medicine of an injurious or objectionable nature, and if at any time a remedial agent is required, to assist nature, only those of known excellence should be used; remedies which are pure and wholesome and truly beneficial in effect, like the pleasant laxative remedy, Syrup of Figs, manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co. Syrup of Figs has come into general favor in many millions of well informed families, whose estimate of its quality and excellence is based upon personal knowledge and use.

Syrup of Figs has also met with the approval of physicians generally, because they know it is wholesome, simple and gentle in its action. We inform all reputable physicians as to the medicinal principles of Syrup of Figs, obtained, by an original method, from certain plants known to them to act most beneficially and presented in an agreeable syrup in which the wholesome Californian blue figs are used to promote the pleasant taste; therefore it is not a secret remedy and hence we are free to refer to all well informed physicians, who do not approve of patent medicines and never favor indiscriminate self-medication.

Please to remember and teach your children also that the genuine Syrup of Figs always has the full name of the Company—California Fig Syrup Co.—plainly printed on the front of every package and that it is for sale in bottles of one size only. If any dealer offers any other than the regular Fifty cent size, or having printed thereon the name of any other company, do not accept it. If you fail to get the genuine you will not get its beneficial effects. Every family should always have a bottle on hand, as it is equally beneficial for the parents and the children, whenever a laxative remedy is required.

SAYINGS OF THE SAGES.

Lack of desire is the greatest of riches.—Seneca.

Art holds fast when all else is lost.—From the German.

He is safe from danger who is on his guard even when safe.—Syrus.

In the court of his own conscience no guilty man is acquitted.—Juvenal.

He who is afraid of asking is ashamed of learning.—From the Danish.

When all men say you are an ass, it is time to bray.—From the Spanish.

The only competition worthy a wise man is with himself.—Anna Jameson.

A babe is an angel whose wings decrease as his legs increase.—From the French.

DAZED WITH PAIN.

The Sufferings of a Citizen of Olympia, Wash.

L. S. Gorham, of 516 East 4th St., Olympia, Wash., says: "Six years ago I got wet and took cold, and was soon flat in bed, suffering tortures with my back. Every movement caused an agonizing pain, and the persistency of it exhausted me, so that for a time I was dazed and stupid. On the advice of a friend I began using Doan's Kidney Pills, and soon noticed a change for the better. The kidney secretions had been disordered and irregular, and contained a heavy sediment, but in a week's time the urine was clear and natural again and the passages regular. Gradually the aching and soreness left my back and then the lameness. I used six boxes to make sure of a cure, and the trouble has never returned."

Will Widen Kiel Canal.

The ever-increasing dimensions of war vessels has led the German government to decide to widen the Kiel canal from 60 to 130 feet, and the width at the surface from 130 feet to 350 feet. The proposed improvements, it is estimated, will cost nearly $50,000,000.

GETTING WARM IN OSAGE.

Both Parties Trying to Pick Winners. Odds With Democrats.

Guthrie, Ok., Aug. 31.—The Republicans of the Osage nation are contending earnestly with the Democrats for the election of two delegates from that nation to the constitutional convention, and the race is waxing hot and hotter. It has been decided that John Leahy, of Pawhuska, will be one of the Democratic nominees. He is an intermarried citizen. The other nominee has not yet been settled upon.

The Republicans have about settled upon Isaac D. Taylor, a Pawhuska attorney, and Frank DeNoya, a mixed-blood Osage, living near Remington, as their candidates. The Democrats, however, are fighting Taylor on the ground that he is a railroad attorney, as he represents the Midland Valley at Pawhuska. He is also charged with being the "machine candidate," although Amos Ewing, one of McGuire's right hand men, is fighting Taylor hard.

The general impression seems to be that the Democrats will win. They are claiming it by 500 majority, while the Republicans will give no figures whatever to back up their claims. They maintain they will win by a small majority. By placing a mixed blood on the ticket, the Republicans expect to get the mixed blood vote among the Indians, but by so doing the Democrats claim the fullbloods will be alienated.

BUSY FOR DEMOCRACY.

Judge Furman Devoting His Talents to Party Success.

Judge Henry M. Furman, after spending a strenuous week speaking for Democracy in the northern part of the Territory under assignment of the state campaign committee, closed the week's tour at Collinsville today. The judge will rest at home Sunday.

If the constitutional convention should not be Democratic—a thing quite improbable—it will be through no fault of Henry M. Furman. On Monday he will resume his itinerary, which for the next two weeks is as follows:

Monday, Sept. 3, Holdenville; Tuesday, Sept. 4, Chandler; Wednesday, Sept. 5, Guthrie; Thursday, Sept. 6, Perry; Friday, Sept. 7, Blackburn; Saturday, Sept. 8, Cushing; Tuesday, Sept. 11, Miami; Wednesday, Sept. 12, Fairland; Thursday, Sept. 13, Pryor Creek; Friday, Sept. 14, Wagoner; Saturday, Sept. 15, Eufaula.

Cardwell at Home.

W. D. Cardwell took a short respite from his arduous duties at Democratic headquarters in Oklahoma City and ran down home for a few hours today. He had to return on the afternoon train. He says everything is beautiful up there and the party's interests advancing with giant strides. The organization is admirable, he declares, especially so in the Indian Territory.

Special Notice.

All members of the Christian church are specially requested to be present tomorrow morning at the close of Sunday school and hear the report of the delegates who have just returned from the convention of the Christian church of the Indian Territory. The report will be interesting.

Has a Fondness for "Crockett."

The News is today in receipt of a "drop" postal, referring to the change of Ada's name, which reads thus: "The name Ada should be abandoned. It is insignificant and meaningless. It might answer for a village, but it would strangle a city. I prefer 'Crockett.' M. L. CHAPMAN, Oldtown."

J. R. Lawrence for Delegate.

For the important office of constitutional delegate from the 87th district, the News is authorized to announce the name of J. R. Lawrence. He offers for the honor subject to the action of the Democratic primary.

Born 73 years ago in the Kiamisha mountains, Choctaw nation, Mr. Lawrence has resided continuously in the Territory, save for the time he spent at school in Texas and Kentucky. He is one-fourth Choctaw Indian blood. After having spent most of his life in Blue county he removed, fifteen years ago, to Pontotoc county, six miles from Ada. A year ago he came to town and established a home. All his life he has been a farmer and stock raiser.

Mr. Lawrence is by no means a stranger to public life. For two terms he was a member of the Choctaw legislature; was deputy national agent two terms; was timber inspector for a number of years; besides, he has occupied a number of minor public positions, among them that of Indian Police. But all these were held under Democratic administrations. "Uncle Joe," as Mr. Lawrence is familiarly known, declares emphatically he would not hold an office under a Republican administration. This affords some insight into the unquestionable character of his Democracy.

Though Mr. Lawrence has held many positions of trust among his people, his status as an influential citizen is not to be judged alone thereby. For years he has been a trusted counsellor of theirs, enjoying their fullest confidence, ever faithful in protecting them, to the utmost of his ability, against encroachments upon their rights. In such capacity he has mingled much with the white man, has become quite conversant with affairs of government, has learned the virtues of both races, and has acquired a thorough knowledge of conditions existing in Indian Territory.

Thus equipped Uncle Joe is well qualified to aid in the constructive work incident to the constitutional convention, in the picturesque and delicate task of finishing the political merger of the two races. With his wide acquaintance in this country and his numerous friends, he should prove a formidable candidate for the Democratic nomination. And the nomination, of course, is tantamount to election.

AN AGED TOURIST.

An Octogenarian Walking from Denver to Hartshorne Passes through Ada.

There passed through Ada, Friday, one David Garrett, aged 83 years, who left Denver, Col., May 15th, on foot, with Hartshorne, I. T., as his destination.

J. H. Cyfert overtook the old gentleman near town and gave him a lift as far as Ahlosio. During the drive the latter talked interestingly of his long walk. His children with whom he had lived in Denver deciding to move farther west, he balked and packed up his belongings and started for Hartshorne. He has money with which to ride, the old fellow declared, but prefers to walk and save it. He has had a fine trip, he assured Mr. Cyfert,—"Lots of fun" was the expression. "Never slept out a single night, seldom any body would accept my money; was given occasional lifts along the road, but for the most part walked." Mr. Cyfert says uncle Daniel was remarkably spry for his age, that the pack he carried weighed nearly a hundred pounds. The last he saw of the venerable pedestrian he was clipping it eastward down the dusty road with his pack and telescope.

"NO SUCH WORD AS FAIL" FOR THE NEW RAILROAD

Mr. E. A. Hill, the popular railroad promoter, arrived in the city this morning to look after matters pertaining to the road. When seen by a News reporter he was as genial and hopeful as ever.

Our people may now be assured that the new railway, the K. C. L. & P., which recently acquired by merger the Canadian Midland railroad, will be built and trains in operation from Wagoner and Muskogee to the Ft. Worth and Denver City across Red river, on schedule time. The authoritative statement of the route of the road noting objective points as follows was confirmed by Mr. Hill, Assistant General Manager, in a manner leaving no mistake: Wagoner, Porter, Haskell to McKennon, a new town west of Muskogee, at the Twin Mounds, from which point a line of the road extends into Muskogee. From McKennon the line converging at that junction runs south via Beggs, Deep Fork, Hampton, Arbeka, Wewoka, from which latter point a branch named in the charter "Branch line No. 1 in the Indian Territory," will build to Dustin via Wetumka. From Wewoka the main line penetrates due southward by Sasakwa to Ada, from which city the route is due west through Pauls Valley, a new town recently acquired east of Marlow, through Marlow, Lawton and Frederick to the Ft. Worth & Denver City in Texas at the point of crossing that line and the Kansas City, Mexico & Orient.

Mr. Hill exhibited to the editor a certified copy of the bond contract between the brokerage firm of W. K. Burton Company of New York, New Orleans and Memphis, and his principals, but did not make the terms of the contract public further than was necessary to positively confirm the route and the objective points and to prove that the bonds were actually placed at only 2 1/2-2c on the dollar below full par value.

SITUATION IN ISLAND GROWING YET DARKER

Havana, Aug. 31.—The situation is far darker tonight than at any previous time since the insurrection broke out. News of an uprising in Santiago province, while not yet published here, is spreading about the city and causing the greatest concern. When Mr. Sleeper, the American charge d'affaires here, was told the contents of the Associated Press Santiago dispatch, he endeavored to verify it through the state department, but was told it was absolutely untrue. Subsequently the dispatch was verified from private and newspaper sources.

The extent of the uprising in Santiago is not known, but it is known that one of the worst calamities of all to the Palma government would be the insurrection in Eastern Cuba.

The increasing gravity of the situation has revived discussion of the possibility of intervention by the United States. La Discussion, the semi-official organ of the administration, in an editorial this evening calls upon Cubans to down their arms and save the republic from the danger of intervention. The article appeals to the patriotism of the people, depicting the results of intervention as follows:

"Permanent intervention would be worse than death. It would be preferable if the Caribbean sea would engulf the Pearl of the Antilles."

The article further appeals thus to racial sentiment: "The colored race may tremble before the possibility of intervention. Americans hate and despise negroes. Even their own negroes with whom they have been in contact for 200 years are treated like dogs, lynched and hardly considered human. If it is so with negroes of their own land and language, what would happen to the Cuban negro?"

PARKER PRESIDENT.

Sole Nominee for Chief Office of Bar Association.

St. Paul, Minn., Sept. 1.—Judge Alton B. Parker, of New York, was the sole nominee of the general council of the American Bar association for the office of president for the next year. At a meeting of the committee previous to the general session the following slate was named and will be acted on later: President, Alton B. Parker, of New York; secretary, J. P. Hinckley, of Baltimore, Md.; treasurer, Frederick E. Wedhams, of Albany, N. Y. Executive committee: Charles Monroe, Los Angeles, Cal.; Ralph Breckenridge, Omaha, Neb.; Rome G. Brown, Minneapolis; Walter G. Smith, Minneapolis; Charles F. Libby, Portland, Me.

THE POOR MAN HAS SMALL CHANCE AT HOMESTEADS

Lawton, Ok., Sept. 1.—Should the Interior Department decide to dispose of the big pasture and the other Indian reserve to be opened to settlement this fall by sealed bids, as it seems they are going to, the poor man will have little chance of getting the choicest of the land.

Provisions will have to be made whereby the bidder can show that he is a qualified homesteader at the time he makes his bid. This will be made out in blank form and accompany the bid and will then be passed upon by the Interior Department before his bid is considered. A certain percentage of the bidding price must accompany the bid. The exact per cent has not been determined by the department. A poor man will not have the means to bid on more than one or two tracts of land if he is required to put up a forfeit for each bid submitted, especially when he is required to advance one-fifth of the price at the time he qualifies.

Many questions are now being considered by the General Land Office officials since the plans of selling the reserve has been changed from the auction to the sealed bid plan. In case one prospective homesteader should be the high man on two quarter-sections of land it will then be necessary to declare the second highest bidder the successful entryman to the second piece, providing he is qualified to enter. But in the case that the first and second bidder should be disqualified because they have been awarded other land, then the question arises, would a lower man get the land?

The General Land Office is already aware of many problems to work out, in preparing the revised regulations since it is the decision of the Secretary to sell by sealed bids. There are 3,156 quarter sections to be thrown open under these provisions, and it is estimated by the General Land Office that there will be ten bids to the homestead, making a total of 30,000 papers that will have to be examined and passed on by the officials of that department.

The Interior Department has made known the report of the appraisers who were sent here to appraise the Duncan pasture. The leases were assessed at an average of $12.60, making the lease cost on an average of $1.600. The values ranged from $800 to $4,260 for the 160 acres, these figures including improvements placed thereon. As the most of this land is good farming soil the prices are considered equitable in all cases.

Men and Mules Killed by Lightning.
Elk City, Ok., Sept. 1.—J. S. Marsham, traveling overland from Portales, N. M., reported here today the finding of two dead men sitting upright in their wagon near Kenna, and four mules dead in their harness. The men have been identified as Victor and Tom Simpson, living near Alida. They were killed by lightning while driving.

STAD NEW ENGLAND ALSO GOES WILD OVER BRYAN

New Haven, Conn., Sept. 1.—The visit of William Jennings Bryan to Connecticut yesterday must have strongly reminded him of the strenuous days during his Presidential campaign, for he delivered four addresses, each of considerable length, attended two receptions and was the center of handshaking bees whenever his admirers could reach him. This was crowded into the hours between noon, when he reached this city, and his retirement at night at Bridgeport.

Everywhere he was heartily received, although there was an absence of street demonstrations both here and in Bridgeport. His audiences, however, were wildly enthusiastic, especially at the noon luncheon here. The features of the day were luncheon and the conference of New England Democrats. At the former Mr. Bryan was welcomed to the city and state and at the latter he stood before a representative body of New England Democrats and with great earnestness spoke of the problems which the party must face in the coming campaigns. Mr. Bryan said in the course of his address that New England never had been a "good breeding place for Democracy; Jefferson had

A delay at the start of Mr. Bryan's trip caused an overlapping of the three meetings here, to the disappointment of many. The mass meeting on the green here had to be started before the luncheon was actually over, and the Democratic conference was not completed until it was time for Mr. Bryan to deliver his third address of the day.

The chief change in the program was the inclusion of former Governor Garvin, of Rhode Island, as one of the open air speakers, as the address that he had prepared for the luncheon had been ruled as being too political. Mr. Garvin spoke at the luncheon here, paying a tribute to the uprightness of Mr. Bryan.

Mr. Bryan left New Haven for Bridgeport shortly before 6 o'clock, addressing an audience in the evening at the army. His addresses at the mass meetings were along the lines of his speech at Madison Square Garden Thursday night.

This morning Mr. Bryan will return to New York. Most of the members of his party who were with him yesterday left for their homes last night.

DON'T WANT PHONETIC SPELLING INTRODUCED

Washington, Sept. 1.—Teachers, as well as parents, and possibly pupils, in the District of Columbia are greatly wrought up over the announcement of Superintendent Chancellor of the District schools that phonetic spelling will be taught in the schools of this city. The teachers, it is said, had laughingly discussed the subject, little thinking that the superintendent would ever seriously consider introducing the system. He has only recently come to Washington.

Dr. Chancellor says the reform is in the direction of improvement of the orthography of the language and of the language itself by the simplification of the spelling, which has been the stumbling block of foreigners who have attempted to overcome the difficulties of English "as she is spelt." Pupils are to be allowed to choose whether they shall use the old system or the system of Carnegie-Roosevelt.

The teachers say that to use the phonetic system would be almost an impossibility, especially as the text books, which are translations from the old German and French writers, would have to be changed so as to conform to the new, and what one of them termed "the crazy" system. It would be manifestly impossible, the teachers contend, to allow the advanced grades, which have accomplished the victory over the old methods, to cling to it, while the junior grades would be allowed to adopt the new. They would have to learn the old also when they reached the more advanced grades. In any case it would be necessary to re-write the text books, the new form of spelling to be used by those who adopt that form and the old form to be retained for those who might wish to cling to the present orthography.

OVERDRAFTS

It is becoming well known by business men that overdrafts, whether large or small, are not approved by the controller of the currency. The large central banks allow overdrafts only in a very small way, and this, it matters not how small, is not approved by the powers that be. This unbusinesslike habit of overdrafts grew out of advancing on moving products, such as cotton, grain, and fat stock on the move. The overdraft system is wrong and the man whose account is always overdrawn is the man who spends more money than he makes and will finally have no bank account.

One of the big railroad companies of the United States recently placed in Paris a loan of $50,000,000. There are reports to the effect that another large railroad corporation is seeking to negotiate a similar loan. The money in both cases is for betterments demanded by increased and increasing traffic. It does not look as though the railroads, which are pretty good barometers, anticipate any serious setback to the prevailing prosperity.

Dr. Calmette and M. C. Guerin, of the Pasteur Institute, of Lille, France, have just communicated to the French Academy of Sciences the results of experiments in vaccinating against infection with tuberculosis. They find, says the London Times, that if they cause a calf or kid to swallow at 45 days' interval two doses of 5 and 25 centigrams of dead bacilli of tuberculosis, or bacilli of weak vitality, the animal becomes proof against infections of fresh bovine tuberculosis. Human beings have not yet been experimented on with the virus, but it is thought that it may prove effective.

Mr. Haldane, the British minister of war, has had his attention strongly directed to the one defect in the army system; that is, that it turns a discharged soldier into the world at an age when he has lost his adaptiveness and when without a trade he finds himself at a great disadvantage in competing with younger men. Therefore, Mr. Haldane has appointed a committee to consider the training of the soldiers in various trades. It is believed that something can be found in this way which will be better for the ex-soldier than the present system.

The extension of manual training so that every boy would have an opportunity to fit himself for a trade would make the problem of parents much easier of solution, says the Pittsburgh Dispatch. Boys instead of being set at work as doers of odd jobs, wasting the years when they should be qualifying themselves for work as journeymen, should be given a chance to prepare themselves for their life work. The great number of youths anxious to take advantage of the opportunity offered by the Carnegie schools proves the need.

Cold tubs for dogs is the latest hygienic rule in Germany. It has been discovered that dogs contract certain affections of the skin and communicate them to human beings. From this fact the necessity of cleanliness and frequent washing is deduced. Special bathing establishments for dogs, with specially constructed baths to obviate tubs or other receptacles into which dogs object to be lifted, are being built in many towns, and are widely patronized. The last has just been opened in Dresden.

TOOK GIRL AS HIS REWARD.

Youth's Choice May Have Been Wise, Under the Circumstances.

Senator Beveridge was condemning a notoriously corrupt and notoriously plausible capitalist.

"The man speaks well," said Senator Beveridge. "He promises much. If he acted as he talked, he would be famous for his goodness. But, alas! he is like the German who nearly lost his daughter.

"This German, with his daughter, was walking beside a deep stream on a summer afternoon when the young girl slipped on a stone, fell in. And she would have drowned but for the prompt bravery of a youth. He, slipping off coat and shoes, plunged in, and after four or five minutes of hard work, brought the girl safe ashore.

"The old German father was transported.

"Noble-minded youth," said he, "we do, indeed, owe you a debt of gratitude. A hundred thousand marks or my daughter's hand—choose! Which shall it be?"

"The youth, who was no less wise than brave, thought to himself that if he took the daughter he would some day get the money also, and, accordingly, without a moment's hesitation, he made answer:

"I choose your daughter."

AMERICAN WINNER, AS USUAL.

Upheld Greatness of His Native Country and Retained His Bank Roll.

A Frenchman, a German, an Englishman and an American were sitting before an open fire, each one telling of the greatness of his native country.

While speaking the Frenchman took from his wallet a dollar bill, rolled it up, touched it to the coals, and lighted a cigar with it.

The others were impressed, and soon the German opened his wallet, brought forth a ten-dollar bill, rolled it up, touched it to the coals, and lighted his cigar with it.

The Englishman thought it very foolish, but he could not be outdone, nor have it appear that England was not, as ever, the richest of all, so he calmly took a $100 bill and sacrificed it to light his cigar.

The American looked on in wonder. He hadn't even a dollar bill with him, and yet he knew he represented the leading race of all—which was never outwitted nor outdone by anyone or any country; so he quietly drew forth a checkbook, wrote a check for $10,000 on a prominent New York bank, duly signed it, rolled it up, touched it to the coals, and lighted his cigar with it. While his confederates watched him curiously and intently.—Ladies' Home Journal.

Sea Cow's Back as Marking Pad.
People who visited the zoo greatly annoyed the keeper of the sea cow, a new acquisition, by poking it with canes or pencils. Exhausted by his efforts to stop the practice, he engaged a tramp for 50 cents and told him to keep track of how many people looked at the manatee. At six o'clock the keeper looked up his substitute.

"There's been more than 5,000 people here," said the latter. "I haven't time to reckon up the exact number yet, and won't until I audit up my books."

"Where's the paper you kept your accounts on?" asked Stephen, the keeper.

"I didn't have any paper," answered the hobo, as if proud of his ingenuity, "but I had a good soft lead pencil and kept tab on the sea cow's back."

He pointed to the patient manatee, the back of which resembled a blackboard in a country schoolhouse after the annual examination.—Cincinnati Correspondence Cleveland Leader.

Question for Botanists.

It has often been observed that any sudden change in the superficial character of the soil is rapidly followed by an alteration in the nature of the plants growing thereon, new species appearing where the ground has hitherto been a stranger to them. Very many farmers, foresters and scientific men—among others the French botanist Poisson—are inclined to attribute this phenomenon to the retention by seeds, bulbs or spores of a former growth of vegetation in a quiescent state, these seeds and growths retaining their powers of germination even after several other successive crops of plants have grown above them.

Not His Fault, Though.

"It is a very fine thing to be brave and generous and noble," said Bliss Perry, the writer, editor and Harvard teacher, "but sometimes we are generous and noble against our will. Then, of course, we deserve no credit."

"Of this type was a young married man whose father-in-law, a reputed millionaire, burst in on him one day and growled:

"All is lost! I am utterly ruined!"

"Ahem," said the son-in-law; "then I married for love, after all."

His Finish.
"Yes'm," said little Tommy Tipples, "pop died of amonia."

"Ammonia?" said his teacher. "Oh, yes, I see, you mean 'pneumonia.'"

"No, I don't; I mean 'ammonia.' I seen the label on the bottle after he drank it."

Seasonable Entertainments and Suggestions for Social Functions

Along about this time of the year the farmers are gathering in the last of their grain, apples and other fruits are being stowed away for the winter's use, and vegetables, too, have reached their climax. It is the season of plenty, and a "harvest dinner" not only will be apropos, but very easily arranged. Not many guests should be bidden, for the service naturally must be plentiful, and too many guests will bring too great a display of food to be appetizing. As nearly as possible have a representative of all the fruits, vegetables and grains on the table, either in decoration or actual service.

For the table decoration have a horn of plenty filled with fruits, and hung from the chandelier. Immediately beneath arrange a mound or bouquet of the grains—wheat, oats and the like. On the stem of each fruit which is placed in the central horn of plenty tie a narrow ribbon, which will lead to a cover. At the "cover" end of the ribbon a paper horn of plenty with the name of guest written thereon or a tiny horn of plenty, with the name thrust in the horn, may be used as the place card.

For the first course serve watermelon in the old-fashioned southern or farm style. Cut the melon lengthwise, not removing the rind before serving. Chicken or tomato soup may follow, with all the relishes of the season. For August the fish course may be omitted, if desired, and the meat course may follow the soup. For this serve crown of lamb with mint sauce. Shredded potatoes, green peas and corn boiled on the cob and replaced in the original husk for serving will serve as the vegetables for this course. Pineapple or raspberry sherbet, likewise, will make a good dish for the next course. The salad should be a combination of all the fresh vegetables, sliced together and served with French or mayonnaise dressing, the French preferred.

The dessert course may be frozen peaches and coffee, and for the very last bring in a great plate of the early nuts. Then ask the guests to pull the ribbons bearing their place cards, and the fruit from the horn of plenty will come tumbling to their places. As the table will be cleared except for the plate of nuts, no damage can be done, and conjecture will be rife as to what each one will draw from the horn of plenty for the final course. The same idea in decoration—the horns of plenty and the use of grain and fruit—may be carried out throughout the rooms of the house, if desired.

A Literary Evening.

The ever-new but old idea of the magazine as a means of entertainment may be arranged in a somewhat new form for a summer's evening at a home church or club affair. Starting with the old idea of erecting a frame for the posing of the contents of the magazine, name the publication according to the place wherein you reside or to the event to be considered. Announce the issue as the late summer book number.

Friends of the host and hostess, or young people of the town, should be dressed and posed to represent some well-known books, and the object will be to make the guests guess the titles from the living pictures. The first picture, of course, will announce the title of the magazine merely. If the affair is to be used as a money-making scheme, local advertisements may be used at intervals, but if not, the book number should begin at once. The frontispiece of the magazine may be one of the book titles, or it may be the photograph of a very well-known author or poet. The guests must write the name of the man or woman shown on the paper which has been furnished each, as the first answer.

As the magazine is to be made the chief feature of the evening, some 15 or 20 pictures should be shown.

For the first "Kingston's" "The Beautiful Lady" may be shown as a sweet-faced, white-haired old lady—an old-fashioned grandmother. A dashing young woman, too, might be used to represent this title, but no two people bear the same ideas as to real beauty, whereas the old lady of the type mentioned appeals to all.

Major's "When Knighthood Was in Flower" can be made into a beautiful living picture—a young man in colonial costume, kissing the hand of a maiden in the costume of the same period—a bit of gallantry which is well-nigh obsolete in this day.

Another of "Kingston's"—"The Gentleman from Indiana," can be used as the first bit of comedy in the magazine—a typical Hoosier may be shown, with pencil and pad, bringing out the idea of the "state of authors," as Indiana is known.

Connor's "The Prospector" may be the means of showing a picture of a true wild western miner with pick and shovel.

Wister's "The Virginian" may picture the man of the plains in his most romantic dress, or the typical old Virginia gentleman may be shown to represent this stirring title.

Barrie's "Little Minister" is too suggestive a title to need aid in posing, and so, likewise, is Mrs. Gray's "Heavenly Twins," although both will be capital for the magazine.

Long's "Madame Butterfly" will make an effective picture—a dainty maiden dressed in Japanese costume, with butterflies in her hair, on the paper flower bushes which may grow about her, and in the design of her dress. This idea, too, might be worked out to the modern society matron, but the picture would not be as pretty.

Connor's "Man from Glengarry" brings in another type—the lumberman; and Doyle's "Study in Scarlet" may produce a Parisian dancer in her scarlet ballet dress, or a modern young woman in red will suffice as well.

Holland's "Bitter Sweet" may be the comedy vehicle again, if a pretty and otherwise sweet young woman—one known to be sweet of disposition—may be posed with a very bitter brown upon her pretty face.

Miss Johnston's "To Have and to Hold" is ideal for a mother and child picture—a reproduction of Mrs. Vonnoh's little statuette of a young mother holding her babe would be most attractive.

Parker's "Sons of the Mighty" may be an empty throne, and Rostand's "Cyrano" will make an excellent character picture.

More fun may be produced by Herrick's "The Common Lot," or Doyle's "Sign of the Four." The first may picture a man perched on a high stool in front of a desk covered with papers. With a pencil behind each ear he is "digging" away with might and main. The last may be worked out by posing four folk with talent for pantomime.

Caine's "The Christian" may show another old lady picture—an elderly woman, seated with her Bible in her lap.

"Under the Red Robe" is easily illustrated, while "Under Two Flags" will make an attractive military picture. The series may close with Miss Schreiner's "Black Beauty," showing a young man or woman with blackened face, and dressed in the very height of fashion, which may serve as the last funny picture, and Miss Alcott's "Old-Fashioned Girl" with needs no description, as the final "sweet young girl" picture.

When the magazine has come to an end, each guest writes his or her name on the slip of paper which has been given them for their answers, and the slips are exchanged among the guests for examination. Then the index of the magazine appears as the last leaf, and the papers are corrected. The most successful contestant is given a late novel or some attractive book, and the "Funny Dictionary" will serve as a booby prize.

What He Would Say.

The late Francis Coggin for a long time was a director of the Indian Head National bank, Nashua, N. H. During the last years of his directorship the present cashier, Ira L. Harris, was at the head of the institution. It was Mr. Coggin's custom to visit the bank daily, and invariably as he opened the door he would say, in tones that could be heard all over the bank, "Is Ira in?" Mr. Harris grew very tired of this, much to the amusement of the rest of the bank. Finally the phrase came to be a by-word with them.

During the summer preceding his death Mr. Coggin looked very bad, but was able to get out and make his usual visits to the bank. One hot day in July the clerks were sweltering over their work, when in walked Mr. Coggin, with his usual salutation, "Is Ira in?"

"Yes," said Mr. Harris, "I am here. It's a pretty hot day, isn't it?"

"Hot! You don't call this hot, do you? You ought to have been with me one summer down in Georgia." And Mr. Coggin proceeded to tell what hot weather really was.

After he had gone out Mr. Harris spoke up as follows: "Doesn't Mr. Coggin look bad? I am afraid it won't be long before he will be where the weather will be hot enough for him."

"Yes," piped up the correspondence clerk, "and the first thing that he will say when he opens the door will be: 'Is Ira in?'"—Boston Herald.

Unanimous.

The late Lord Leighton, president of the Royal academy, once had a chance to learn something about himself that perhaps he had not suspected. His chance came to him at a picture-gallery, where his painting, "Helen of Troy," was on exhibition.

He joined a group of ladies who were standing before it just in time to hear one of the number say:

"It is a horrid picture, simply horrid."

"I'm sorry, but it's mine!" Lord Leighton exclaimed, involuntarily.

"You don't mean to say you've bought the thing?" questioned the same lady.

"No, I—painted it," the artist humbly replied.

The critical lady was momentarily abashed; then she said, easily:

"Oh, you mustn't mind what I say."

"No, indeed, you mustn't," another began, earnestly. "She only said what everybody else is saying!"—Youth's Companion.

Two Thoughtful Bon Voyage Gifts—A Delightful Lawn Party—Another Musical Game.

Two Bon Voyage Gifts.
For a young boy who was going to Europe for six months a girl friend made this charming gift whereby many an hour was happily spent, and it provided amusement not only for him, but the grown-ups in the party enjoyed it quite as much.

It was a blank book, the first pages containing 90 cleverly illustrated book "titles." The "key" to this was given to the lad's mother. Then there were a number of pages ruled off forming a diary, covering the months of the journey.

After this came snap shots of his own house, the street on which he lived and of the children who were his playmates and friends. There were valentines from these chums, also Easter cards, April fool jokes and fourth of July souvenirs.

The special pages were tied together with "not to be opened till the date," written on the page preceding, and the boy's birthday pages were concealed in the same manner. The other "going away" gift was arranged for a baby of three years, who was to make the long month's voyage to South America, and a friend provided a huge ball of worsted, with the instructions to unwind one "surprise" a day. The ball contained all sorts of little novelties, a top, dolls of various kinds, a tiny bottle of perfume, a gay handkerchief, knife, pair of round-pointed scissors, small boxes of odd shapes filled with bonbons, toy animals, and a coarse needle, threaded, and a number of large-hole buttons.

A Lawn Party.

Lawn parties for grown people and children are the popular form of amusement these days, and certainly there is nothing prettier in the entertainment line. With an abundance of lanterns, fairy lamps and electric lights, a comparatively small yard may be transformed into a bower of

BEAUTY AND EXERCISE

Plenty of Time for Exercise in Cool of Summer Day—What Makes for Grace.

The body needs air, exercise and rest, food, play and sleep during the warm days of summer as well as the cold days of winter; during the crisp, sparkling days of the late fall as well as the half sultry and wholly languorous days of the spring. The exercise, to be sure, should not be so violent and should have much of the real pleasure element in it, but it should be exercise and taken daily.

The time for it should also be wisely chosen during the warm days, for from the hours of eleven to three or four it is well to rest and the ham mock, cool corner of the porch or shady nook in orchard or grove tempts one to settle down with book, fancy work or friends, and it is well to have plenty of such hours sprinkled generously through our summer's fun. But for bodily exercise (other than deep breathing, which may and should be indulged in at all hours and many times during the long warm days) the best time is in the early morning, when the air itself tempts one to motion, or in the late afternoon, for then it is that tennis, golf, field hockey, croquet, the bicycle, the saddle horse, the canoe or rowboat may be indulged in to the best advantage, or, the long, brisk walk be taken, preceded or followed by gentle club swinging exercises and trunk bendings and turnings in all directions—arm and leg swinging—chest expansion and deep breathing work.

To be able to take healthy exercise and to look your prettiest at the same time is a combination of affairs well-nigh irresistible.

Even a fair-sized city yard provides space enough for archery or quail throwing, although hardly enough for that ancient pastime of the Greeks, which has been recently revived both in England and America—throwing the discus.

The usual athletic costume may be used for archery, although any gown in which the arms have perfect freedom of movement is as comfortable for the performance.

The muscles of the arms, shoulders, back and neck are all developed and beauty, especially if the house has large porches. Japanese screens and porch awnings protect from the gaze of the public, and huge paper umbrellas fastened to stout sticks driven into the ground make most picturesque shades for lemonade and frappe bowls.

Spread rugs about, with settees conveniently placed, and if there is room have a platform for the young people to dance. A few stringed instruments, the players concealed by palms or shrubbery, add greatly to the occasion. If there is dancing, paste the numbers or write them on small fans, attaching a pencil by ribbon or cord to the handle. At the "Jap" stores long garlands for decorative purposes may be purchased. They are made of paper and are new and attractive. A cotillion with "Jap" favors would be lovely danced on the lawn. Square dances, the quadrilles, reels and fancy figures are all especially good for out-of-door parties.

There seems to be no end to musical games. Here is a particularly clever one, somewhat different from the ones which have previously appeared. On cards or slips of paper write the following questions:

1. Where is the earth?
2. An old man's friend?
3. What do the weary need?
4. A useful article to cook?
5. Found plentifully in most rivers?
6. Part of a fish?
7. An important part of a letter?
8. What title is coveted by military men?
9. What do all public speakers do some time?
10. Not served in barrooms?
11. The most popular music with debutantes?
12. What locks the stable when the horse is gone?
13. The one who guesses the most answers?

Pitching quoits is even better than bowling as an exercise, in that, while the motions are nearly enough the same to call out practically the same muscles, it is an outdoor game. Besides the direct benefit it has upon the general health and upon the development of neck and shoulders and arms, and especially for a hollow chest, there is indirect benefit gained in added grace and buoyancy of the whole body, which becomes pliant and supple if the sport is followed with any degree of regularity.

With a little practice the left arm may be used alternately with the right for the pitching, so that both sides of the body may be developed evenly.

As to discus throwing, the very fact that it is a revival of a Grecian sport is enough to commend it as productive of grace, for the Grecian men and women have furnished the ideal types of grace for the whole world.

Like quail pitching, wrist, back and shoulders are all strengthened by the graceful swaying into which you unconsciously fall in your endeavor to get the quail nearest the peg.

Hon. W. H. Kelbaugh, Ex-Member W. Va. Legislature, 204 9th Street, N. E., Washington, D. C., writes:

"You can use my name and word at all times for Pe-Ru-na as a medicine and tonic. I have tried it for a stubborn cold and badly run down system. I tried all sorts of other medicines and paid several expensive doctor bills. Pe-Ru-na cured me, strengthened me more than ever, and saved me money."

Mrs. Clara Litterst, Seaford, Ind., says: "Last fall I took a severe cold. I took Pe-Ru-na, began to improve and kept on so until I was able to do my work."

For Twenty Years.
Other chill remedies have sprung up, flourished for a brief season, then passed away—even from memory—but for twenty long years Cheatham's Chill Tonic has been in the field of action. The reason is simple. It has the merit. It actually cures Chills and Fevers, while the majority of others merely promise to. One bottle guaranteed to cure any one case.

English the World Language.
The new world language, Esperanto seems to have already won more advocates than the older Volapuk. No manufactured language, however, seems to have much chance in competition with English, which long ago displaced French as the most useful and widely spoken language and which is gaining faster than ever in all parts of the world. Quite recently the German government has ordered that all railway officials and employees must learn to speak English. In Antwerp also the authorities are urging all classes to study English and are providing special facilities in the public schools; the city has become "almost an English-speaking port." In Japan all school children are now obliged to learn our language. A few years hence tourists from this country will be able to get along there as easily as on a trip at home. With Great Britain, India, Australia, Canada, the United States and large sections of Africa using English, what hope is there for any other language?

"NO TROUBLE"

to Change from Coffee to Postum.

"Postum has done a world of good for me," writes an Ills. man.
"I've had indigestion nearly all my life but never dreamed coffee was the cause of my trouble until last Spring I got so bad I was in misery all the time.
"A coffee drinker for 30 years, it irritated my stomach and nerves, yet I was just crazy for it. After drinking it with my meals, I would leave the table, go out and lose my meal and the coffee too. Then I'd be as hungry as ever.
"A friend advised me to quit coffee and use Postum—said it cured him. Since taking his advice I retain my food and get all the good out of it, and don't have those awful hungry spells.
"I changed from coffee to Postum without any trouble whatever, felt better from the first day I drank it. I am well now and give the credit to Postum." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich. Read the little book, "The Road to Wellville," in pgs. "There's a reason."

MODERN SHADES OF MEANING.

Words of English Language That Have Improved with Age.

Why is a poodle so called? Some one says: "Probably the natural answer would recall the old lady who said that no credit could be given to Adam for naming the pig, since anybody would know what to call it. 'Poodle' seems so obvious a name for this dog. And, in fact, this is not far from the truth about the origin of the word. It is quite recent in English, not being found before 1864, apparently. It is the German 'pudel,' which comes from the low German, 'pudeln,' to waddle, and the dog must have been so called, as Skeat says, either because he waddles after his master or because he looks fat and clumsy on account of his thick hair."
"Nice" is one of the exceptional words which have risen on the scale and improved with age. It is from the Latin "nescius" and originally signified ignorant. To Chaucer it regularly meant foolish—"wise and nothing nice." In Spenser's time it still meant effeminate. From general foolishness there was probably first a specialization to foolish fussiness about trifles. Then the idea of ignorance dropped out, and the word meant particular about details, accurate. It was creditable to be a "nice" observer or to show "nice" judgment. And so in the end the positively agreeable meaning of to-day was evolved.
"Skulls" and "skulls" are one word in origin, and both at various times have been spelled capriciously with a "c" or a "k." Pepys, the diarist, tells how he went on the Thames at one time "in a skull," at another in a "skuller." The origin of the word is "skulle" or "sculle," a bowl or goblet. While the cranium was obviously bowl-like in shape, a distant resemblance to a bowl was also detected in the scooped out blade of a "skull," as opposed to the flat blade of our propeller.

GENTLE REMINDER FOR PAPA.

Robbie Uneasy Over Time It Took to Make Printing Press.

One day papa took Robbie down to see the presses print the books and papers and pictures, and the little boy was much interested.
"Papa," said he, "let me come down every day and run the presses."
"O, I couldn't do that," said his papa, "but maybe I'll have a little printing press made for you, just your size."
The weeks and months passed away and papa forgot all about his promise, but Robbie didn't. It was fully a year later that he came home from Sunday school and said: "Papa, teacher said that God made the world in six days. Is that so?"
"I guess it is," said papa.
"The water and the dirt and the trees, and the dogs and birds' nests, and everything?"
"Yes."
"Gee, whiz!" said Robbie, "that was quick work. Six days to make all the world, and you've been a year and ain't got that printin' press done yet!"

One Side of the Mouth.

Did you ever meet a stancer who talked from one side of his mouth, usually in an undertone and with his eyes wandering while talking? The man's manner is not an indication that he is weighing his words or has something important to tell. It is almost a sure sign that he has spent years in jail. This manner of talking is acquired in prison where conversation among prisoners is prohibited and where the men have to talk out of one side of their mouths in order to prevent the keeper from noticing that conversation is going on. The habit sticks to the convicts for years after they get out.

Differently Expressed.

Two groups of people were seated in the waiting room of a railroad station. One consisted of a young man and two young ladies dressed in the height of fashion, the other a man and his wife not so fashionably attired.
They had been there only a few minutes when a girl came in whose complexion was as nearly perfect as anything in this world ever is. While she was buying her ticket the young man remarked to the ladies with him: "Isn't Miss Cranford a beauty? Her complexion is as perfect as a rose."
At the same time the other man clutched his wife's arm and whispered: "Lord, Nan, hasn't that gal got purty hide?"—Lippincott's Magazine.

Profit in Insurance Schemes.

"The profit on all kinds of insurance is great," said a statistician.
"For example, accident insurance. It is all betting, and the average bet made by the accident companies is $1,000 against $4 that you don't die by accident during the year.
"Suppose a company has 40,000,000 subscribers. Its income then is, at $4 for each $1,000 policy, $160,000,000. Statistics show that among 40,000,000 people only 15,000 die by accident. Thus the company pays out but $15,000,000, leaving a gross annual profit of $145,000,000. Insurance is a very good thing, but the rates ought to be lowered tremendously."

Youthful Training.

"Every boy should learn to swim."
"I don't know," answered the man who cultivates differences of opinion. "The boy who can't swim keeps away from deep water. I'd rather have my boy put in his time practicing the art of dodging trolley cars and automobiles."

The Sufferings of a Citizen of Olympia, Wash.

L. S. Gorham, of 516 East 4th St., Olympia, Wash., says: "Six years ago I got wet and took cold, and was soon flat in bed, suffering tortures with my back. Every movement caused an agonizing pain, and the persistency of it exhausted me, so that for a time I was dazed and stupid. On the advice of a friend I began using Doan's Kidney Pills, and soon noticed a change for the better. The kidney secretions had been disordered and irregular, and contained a heavy sediment, but in a week's time the urine was clear and natural again and the passages regular. Gradually the aching and soreness left my back and then the lameness. I used six boxes to make sure of a cure, and the trouble has never returned."

DAZED WITH PAIN.

The Sufferings of a Citizen of Olympia, Wash.

L. S. Gorham, of 516 East 4th St., Olympia, Wash., says: "Six years ago I got wet and took cold, and was soon flat in bed, suffering tortures with my back. Every movement caused an agonizing pain, and the persistency of it exhausted me, so that for a time I was dazed and stupid. On the advice of a friend I began using Doan's Kidney Pills, and soon noticed a change for the better. The kidney secretions had been disordered and irregular, and contained a heavy sediment, but in a week's time the urine was clear and natural again and the passages regular. Gradually the aching and soreness left my back and then the lameness. I used six boxes to make sure of a cure, and the trouble has never returned."

Will Widen Kiel Canal.

The ever-increasing dimensions of war vessels has led the German government to conclude to widen the Kiel canal from 60 to 130 feet, and the width at the surface from 130 feet to 350 feet. The proposed improvements, it is estimated, will cost nearly $50,000,000.

Announcement.

To the Democrats of the Eighty-seventh Constitutional Delegate District: I hereby announce my candidacy for the office of Delegate to the Constitutional Convention, subject to the action of the Democratic primary.

CARLTON WEAVER.

GETTING WARM IN OSAGE.

Both Parties Trying to Pick Winners. Odds With Democrats.

Guthrie, Ok., Aug. 31.—The Republicans of the Osage nation are contending earnestly with the Democrats for the election of two delegates from that nation to the constitutional convention, as the race is waxing hot and hotter. It has been decided that John Leahy, of Pawhuska, will be one of the Democratic nominees. He is an intermarried citizen. The other nominee has not yet been settled upon.

The Republicans have about settled upon Isaac D. Taylor, a Pawhuska attorney, and Frank DeNoya, a mixed-blood Osage, living near Remington, as their candidates. The Democrats, however, are fighting Taylor on the ground that he is a railroad attorney, as he represents the Midland Valley at Pawhuska. He is also charged with being the "machine candidate," although Amos Ewing, one of McGuire's right hand men, is fighting Taylor hard.

The general impression seems to be that the Democrats will win. They are claiming it by 500 majority, while the Republicans will give no figures whatever to back up their claims. They maintain they will win by a small majority. By placing a mixed blood on the ticket, the Republicans expect to get the mixed blood vote among the Indians, but by so doing the Democrats claim the fullbloods will be alienated.

Ardmore's First Bale.

Ardmore, I. T. Sept. 1.—The first bale of cotton of the Chickasaw nation's crop was brought in late last afternoon by C. S. Ferguson, a farmer residing five miles north of this city. The cotton will be sold today. It is reported that crop conditions have improved in the last week and that the outlook is flattering.

BUSY FOR DEMOCRACY.

Judge Furman Devoting His Talents to Party Success.

Judge Henry M. Furman, after spending a strenuous week speaking for Democracy in the northern part of the Territory under assignment of the state campaign committee, closed the week's tour at Collinsville today. The judge will rest at home Sunday.

If the constitutional convention should not be Democratic—a thing quite improbable—it will be through no fault of Henry M. Furman. On Monday he will resume his itinerary, which for the next two weeks is as follows:

Monday, Sept. 3, Holdenville; Tuesday, Sept. 4, Chandler; Wednesday, Sept. 5, Guthrie; Thursday, Sept. 6, Perry; Friday, Sept. 7, Blackburn; Saturday, Sept. 8, Cushing; Tuesday, Sept. 11, Miami; Wednesday, Sept. 12, Fairland; Thursday, Sept. 13, Pryor Creek; Friday, Sept. 14, Wagoner; Saturday, Sept. 15, Eufaula.

Cardwell at Home.

W. D. Cardwell took a short respite from his arduous duties at Democratic headquarters in Oklahoma City and ran down home for a few hours today. He had to return on the afternoon train. He says everything is beautiful up there and the party's interests advancing with giant strides. The organization is admirable, he declares, especially so in the Indian Territory.

Special Notice.

All members of the Christian church are specially requested to be present tomorrow morning at the close of Sunday school and hear the report of the delegates who have just returned from the convention of the Christian church of the Indian Territory. The report will be interesting.

J. R. Lawrence for Delegate.

For the important office of constitutional delegate from the 87th district, the News is authorized to announce the name of J. R. Lawrence. He offers for the honor subject to the action of the Democratic primary.

Born 73 years ago in the Kiamisha mountains, Choctaw nation, Mr. Lawrence has resided continuously in the Territory, save for the time he spent at school in Texas and Kentucky. He is one-fourth Choctaw Indian blood. After having spent most of his life in Blue county he removed, fifteen years ago, to Pontotoc county, six miles from Ada. A year ago he came to town and established a home. All his life he has been a farmer and stock raiser.

Mr. Lawrence is by no means a stranger to public life. For two terms he was a member of the Choctaw legislature; was deputy national agent two terms; was timber inspector for a number of years; besides, he has occupied a number of minor public positions, among them that of Indian Police. But all these were held under Democratic administrations. "Uncle Joe," as Mr. Lawrence is familiarly known, declares emphatically he would not hold an office under a Republican administration. This affords some insight into the unquestionable character of his Democracy.

Though Mr. Lawrence has held many positions of trust among his people, his status as an influential citizen is not to be judged alone thereby. For years he has been a trusted counsellor of theirs, enjoying their fullest confidence, ever faithful in protecting them, to the utmost of his ability, against encroachments upon their rights. In such capacity he has mingled much with the white man, has become quite conversant with affairs of government, has learned the virtues of both races, and has acquired a thorough knowledge of conditions existing in Indian Territory.

Thus equipped Uncle Joe is well qualified to aid in the constructive work incident to the constitutional convention, in the picturesque and delicate task of finishing the political merger of the two races. With his wide acquaintance in this country and his numerous friends, he should prove a formidable candidate for the Democratic nomination. And the nomination, of course, is tantamount to election.

AN AGED TOURIST.

An Octogenarian Walking from Denver to Hartshorne Passes through Ada.

There passed through Ada, Friday, one David Garrett, aged 83 years, who left Denver, Col., May 15th, on foot, with Hartshorne, I. T., as his destination.

J. H. Cyfert overtook the old gentleman near town and gave him a lift as far as Ahlosco. During the drive the latter talked interestingly of his long walk. His children with whom he had lived in Denver deciding to move farther west, he balked and packed up his belongings and started for Hartshorne. He has money with which to ride, the old fellow declared, but prefers to walk and save it. He has had a fine trip, he assured Mr. Cyfert,—"Lots of fun" was the expression. "Never slept out a single night, seldom any body would accept my money; was given occasional lifts along the road, but for the most part walked." Mr. Cyfert says uncle Daniel was remarkably spry for his age, that the pack he carried weighed nearly a hundred pounds. The last he saw of the venerable pedestrian he was clipping it eastward down the dusty road with his pack and telescope.

"NO SUCH WORD AS FAIL" FOR THE NEW RAILROAD

Mr. E. A. Hill, the popular railroad promoter, arrived in the city this morning to look after matters pertaining to the road. When seen by a News reporter he was as genial and hopeful as ever.

Our people may now be assured that the new railway, the K. C. L. & P., which recently acquired by merger the Canadian Midland railroad, will be built and trains in operation from Wagoner and Muskogee to the Ft. Worth and Denver City across Red river, on schedule time. The authoritative statement of the route of the road noting objective points as follows was confirmed by Mr. Hill, Assistant General Manager, in a manner leaving no mistake: Wagoner, Porter, Haskell to McKennon, a new town west of Muskogee, at the Twin Mounds, from which point a line of the road extends into Muskogee. From McKennon the line converging at that junction runs south via Beggs, Deep Fork, Hampton, Arbeka, Wewoka, from which latter point a branch named in the charter "Branch line No. 1 in the Indian Territory," will build to Dustin via Wetumka. From Wewoka the main line penetrates due southward by Sasakwa to Ada, from which city the route is due west through Pauls Valley, a new town recently acquired east of Marlow, through Marlow, Lawton and Frederick to the Ft. Worth & Denver City in Texas at the point of crossing that line and the Kansas City, Mexico & Orient.

Mr. Hill exhibited to the editor a certified copy of the bond contract between the brokerage firm of W. K. Burton Company of New York, New Orleans and Memphis, and his principals, but did not make the terms of the contract public further than was necessary to positively confirm the route and the objective points and to prove that the bonds were actually placed at only 2 1/2-c on the dollar below full par value.

THE POOR MAN HAS SMALL CHANCE AT HOMESTEADS

Lawton, Ok., Sept. 1.—Should the Interior Department decide to dispose of the big pasture and the other Indian reserve to be opened to settlement this fall by sealed bids, as it seems they are going to, the poor man will have little chance of getting the choicest of the land.

Provisions will have to be made whereby the bidder can show that he is a qualified homesteader at the time he makes his bid. This will be made out in blank form and accompany the bid and will then be passed upon by the Interior Department before his bid is considered. A certain percentage of the bidding price must accompany the bid. The exact per cent has not been determined by the department. A poor man will not have the means to bid on more than one or two tracts of land if he is required to put up a forfeit for each bid submitted, especially when he is required to advance one-fifth of the price at the time he qualifies.

Many questions are now being considered by the General Land Office officials since the plans of selling the reserve has been changed from the auction to the sealed bid plan. In case one prospective homesteader should be the high man on two quarter-sections of land it will then be necessary to declare the second highest bidder the successful entryman to the second piece, providing he is qualified to enter. But in the case that the first and second bidder should be disqualified because they have been awarded other land, then the question arises, would a lower man get the land?

The General Land Office is already aware of many problems to work out, in preparing the revised regulations since it is the decision of the Secretary to sell by sealed bids. There are 3,156 quarter sections to be thrown open under these provisions, and it is estimated by the General Land Office that there will be ten bids to the homestead, making a total of 30,000 papers that will have to be examined and passed on by the officials of that department.

The Interior Department has made known the report of the appraisers who were sent here to appraise the Duncan pasture.

The leases were assessed at an average of $12.60, making the lease cost on an average of $1,600. The values ranged from $800 to $4,260 for the 160 acres, these figures including improvements placed thereon. As the most of this land is good farming soil the prices are considered equitable in all cases.

Banquet Bet on Population of Two Territories.

Guthrie, Ok.—There is a difference of almost 100,000 between the estimated populations of Oklahoma and Indian Territory as shown by the statistics compiled by the respective district apportionment boards. The question of population caused much friendly argument among members of the board.

A truce was reached in an agreement whereby Judge W. H. H. Clayton is to be the host at a banquet of the two boards if the election of constitutional delegates should show Oklahoma to have the larger population, while Charles Filson, territorial secretary, will be host if Indian Territory should have the largest population. As the stipulations include champagne—for ornamental purposes—the banquet will probably be served in Oklahoma.

Each Indian Territory district is supposed to have a population of about 13,500, which would make a total population of about 740,000 for Indian Territory. The estimate of the Oklahoma board is approximately 12,000 inhabitants in each district as formed, making the population of Oklahoma 860,000, or 80,000 less than Indian Territory.

STAD NEW ENGLAND ALSO GOES WILD OVER BRYAN

New Haven, Conn., Sept. 1.—The visit of William Jennings Bryan to Connecticut yesterday must have strongly reminded him of the strenuous days during his Presidential campaign, for he delivered four addresses, each of considerable length, attended two receptions and was the center of handshaking bees whenever his admirers could reach him. This was crowded into the hours between noon, when he reached this city, and his retirement at night at Bridgeport.

Everywhere he was heartily received, although there was an absence of street demonstrations both here and in Bridgeport. His audiences, however, were wildly enthusiastic, especially at the noon luncheon here. The features of the day were luncheon and the conference of New England Democrats. At the former Mr. Bryan was welcomed to the city and state and at the latter he stood before a representative body of New England Democrats and with great earnestness spoke of the problems which the party must face in the coming campaigns. Mr. Bryan said in the course of his address that New England never had been a "good breeding place for Democracy; Jefferson had

A delay at the start of Mr. Bryan's trip caused an overlapping of the three meetings here, to the disappointment of many. The mass meeting on the green here had to be started before the luncheon was actually over, and the Democratic conference was not completed until it was time for Mr. Bryan to deliver his third address of the day.

The chief change in the program was the inclusion of former Governor Garvin, of Rhode Island, as one of the open air speakers, as the address that he had prepared for the luncheon had been ruled as being too political. Mr. Garvin spoke at the luncheon here, paying a tribute to the uprightness of Mr. Bryan.

Mr. Bryan left New Haven for Bridgeport shortly before 6 o'clock, addressing an audience in the evening at the armory. His addresses at the mass meetings were along the lines of his speech at Madison Square Garden Thursday night.

This morning Mr. Bryan will return to New York. Most of the members of his party who were with him yesterday left for their homes last night.

SITUATION IN ISLAND GROWING YET DARKER

Havana, Aug. 31.—The situation is far darker tonight than at any previous time since the insurrection broke out. News of an uprising in Santiago province, while not yet published here, is spreading about the city and causing the greatest concern. When Mr. Sleeper, the American charge d'affaires here, was told the contents of the Associated Press Santiago dispatch, he endeavored to verify it through the state department, but was told it was absolutely untrue. Subsequently the dispatch was verified from private and newspaper sources.

The extent of the uprising in Santiago is not known, but it is known that one of the worst calamities of all to the Palma government would be the insurrection in Eastern Cuba.

The increasing gravity of the situation has revived discussion of the possibility of intervention by the United States. La Discussion, the semi-official organ of the administration, in an editorial this evening calls upon Cubans to down their arms and save the republic from the danger of intervention. The article appeals to the patriotism of the people, depicting the results of intervention as follows:

"Permanent intervention would be worse than death. It would be preferable if the Caribbean sea would engulf the Pearl of the Antilles."

The article further appeals thus to racial sentiment:

"The colored race may tremble before the possibility of intervention. Americans hate and despise negroes. Even their own negroes with whom they have been in contact for 200 years are treated like dogs, lynched and hardly considered human. If it is so with negroes of their own land and language, what would happen to the Cuban negro?"

PARKER PRESIDENT.

Sole Nominee for Chief Office of Bar Association.

St. Paul, Minn., Sept. 1.—Judge Alton B. Parker, of New York, was the sole nominee of the general council of the American Bar association for the office of president for the next year. At a meeting of the committee previous to the general session the following slate was named and will be acted on later: President, Alton B. Parker, of New York; secretary, J. P. Hinckley, of Baltimore, Md.; treasurer, Frederick E. Wedhams, of Albany, N. Y. Executive committee: Charles Monroe, Los Angeles, Cal.; Ralph Breenridge, Omaha, Neb.; Rome G. Brown, Minneapolis; Walter G. Smith, Minneapolis; Charles F. Libby, Portland, Me.

DON'T WANT PHONETIC SPELLING INTRODUCED

Washington, Sept. 1.—Teachers, as well as parents, and possibly pupils, in the District of Columbia are greatly wrought up over the announcement of Superintendent Chancellor of the District schools that phonetic spelling will be taught in the schools of this city. The teachers, it is said, had laughingly discussed the subject, little thinking that the superintendent would ever seriously consider introducing the system. He has only recently come to Washington.

Dr. Chancellor says the reform is in the direction of improvement of the orthography of the language and of the language itself by the simplification of the spelling, which has been the stumbling block of foreigners who have attempted to overcome the difficulties of English "as she is spelt." Pupils are to be allowed to choose whether they shall use the old system or the system of Carnegie-Roosevelt.

The teachers say that to use the phonetic system would be almost an impossibility, especially as the text books, which are translations from the old German and French writers, would have to be changed so as to conform to the new, and what one of them termed "the crazy" system. It would be manifestly impossible, the teachers contend, to allow the advanced grades, which have accomplished the victory over the old methods, to cling to it, while the junior grades would be allowed to adopt the new. They would have to learn the old also when they reached the more advanced grades. In any case it would be necessary to re-write the text books, the new form of spelling to be used by those who adopt that form and the old form to be retained for those who might wish to cling to the present orthography.

OVERDRAFTS

It is becoming well known by business men that overdrafts, whether large or small, are not approved by the comptroller of the currency. The large central banks allow overdrafts only in a very small way, and this, it matters not how small, is not approved by the powers that be. This unbusinesslike habit of overdrafts grew out of advancing on moving products, such as cotton, grain, and fat stock on the move. The overdraft system is wrong and the man whose account is always overdrawn is the man who spends more money than he makes and will finally have no bank account.

One of the big railroad companies of the United States recently placed in Paris a loan of $50,000,000. There are reports to the effect that another large railroad corporation is seeking to negotiate a similar loan. The money in both cases is for betterments demanded by increased and increasing traffic. It does not look as though the railroads, which are pretty good barometers, anticipate any serious setback to the prevailing prosperity.

Dr. Calmette and M. C. Guerin, of the Pasteur Institute, of Lille, France, have just communicated to the French Academy of Sciences the results of experiments in vaccinating against infection with tuberculosis. They find, says the London Times, that if they cause a calf or kid to swallow at 45 days' interval two doses of 5 and 25 centigrams of dead bacilli of tuberculosis, or bacilli of weak vitality, the animal becomes proof against infections of fresh bovine tuberculosis. Human beings have not yet been experimented on with the virus, but it is thought that it may prove effective.

Mr. Haldane, the British minister of war, has had his attention strongly directed to the one defect in the army system; that is, that it turns a discharged soldier into the world at an age when he has lost his adaptiveness and when without a trade he finds himself at a great disadvantage in competing with younger men. Therefore, Mr. Haldane has appointed a committee to consider the training of the soldiers in various trades. It is believed that something can be found in this way which will be better for the ex-soldier than the present system.

The extension of manual training so that every boy would have an opportunity to fit himself for a trade would make the problem of parents much easier of solution, says the Pittsburgh Dispatch. Boys instead of being set at work as does of old jobs, wasting the years when they should be qualifying themselves for work as journeymen, should be given a chance to prepare themselves for their life work. The great number of youths anxious to take advantage of the opportunity offered by the Carnegie schools proves the need.

Cold tubs for dogs is the latest hygienic rule in Germany. It has been discovered that dogs contract certain affections of the skin and communicate them to human beings. From this fact the necessity of cleanliness and frequent washing is deduced. Special bathing establishments for dogs, with specially constructed baths to obviate tubs or other receptacles into which dogs object to be lifted, are being built in many towns, and are widely patronized. The last has just been opened in Dresden.

Senator Beveridge was condemning a notoriously corrupt and notoriously plausible capitalist.

"The man speaks well," said Senator Beveridge. "He promises much. If he acted as he talked, he would be famous for his goodness. But, alas! he is like the German who nearly lost his daughter."

"This German, with his daughter, was walking beside a deep stream on a summer afternoon when the young girl slipped on a stone, fell in. And she would have drowned but for the prompt bravery of a youth. He, slipping off coat and shoes, plunged in, and after four or five minutes of hard work, brought the girl safe ashore."

"The old German father was transported."

"Noble-minded youth," said he, "we do, indeed, owe you a debt of gratitude. A hundred thousand marks or my daughter's hand—choose! Which shall it be?"

"The youth, who was no less wise than brave, thought to himself that if he took the daughter he would some day get the money also, and, accordingly, without a moment's hesitation, he made answer:

"I choose your daughter."

AMERICAN WINNER, AS USUAL.

Upheld Greatness of His Native Country and Retained His Bank Roll.

A Frenchman, a German, an Englishman and an American were sitting before an open fire, each one telling of the greatness of his native country.

While speaking the Frenchman took from his wallet a dollar bill, rolled it up, touched it to the coals, and lighted a cigar with it.

The others were impressed, and soon the German opened his wallet, brought forth a ten-dollar bill, rolled it up, touched it to the coals, and lighted his cigar with it.

The Englishman thought it very foolish, but he could not be outdone, nor have it appear that England was not, as ever, the richest of all, so he calmly took a $100 bill and sacrificed it to light his cigar.

The American looked on in wonder. He hadn't even a dollar bill with him, and yet he knew he represented the leading race of all—which was never outwitted nor outdone by anyone or any country; so he quietly drew forth a checkbook, wrote a check for $10,000 on a prominent New York bank, duly signed it, rolled it up, touched it to the coals, and lighted his cigar with it, while his conferees watched him curiously and intently.—Ladies' Home Journal.

Sea Cow's Back as Marking Pad. People who visited the zoo greatly annoyed the keeper of the sea cow, a new acquisition, by poking it with canes or pencils. Exhausted by his efforts to stop the practice, he engaged a tramp for 50 cents and told him to keep track of how many people looked at the manatee. At six o'clock the keeper looked up his substitute.

"There's been more than 5,000 people here," said the latter. "I haven't time to reckon up the exact number yet, and won't until I audit my books."

"Where's the paper you kept your accounts on?" asked Stephen, the keeper.

"I didn't have any paper," answered the hobo, as if proud of his ingenuity, "but I had a good soft lead pencil and kept tab on the sea cow's back."

He pointed to the patient manatee, the back of which resembled a blackboard in a country schoolhouse after the annual examination.—Cincinnati Correspondence Cleveland Leader.

Question for Botanists.

It has often been observed that any sudden change in the superficial character of the soil is rapidly followed by an alteration in the nature of the plants growing thereon, new species appearing where the ground has hitherto been a stranger to them. Very many farmers, foresters and scientific men—among others the French botanist Poisson—are inclined to attribute this phenomenon to the retention by seeds, bulbs or spores of a former growth of vegetation in a quiescent state, these seeds and growths retaining their powers of germination even after several other successive crops of plants have grown above them.

Not His Fault, Though.

"It is a very fine thing to be brave and generous and noble," said Bliss Perry, the writer, editor and Harvard teacher, "but sometimes we are generous and noble against our will. Then, of course, we deserve no credit."

"Of this type was a young married man whose father-in-law, a reputed millionaire, burst in on him one day and groaned:

"All is lost! I am utterly ruined!"

"Ahem," said the son-in-law; "then I married for love, after all."

His Finish. "Yes'm," said little Tommy Tipples, "pop died of amonia."

"Ammonia?" said his teacher. "Oh, yes, I see, you mean 'pneumonia.'"

"No, I don't; I mean 'ammonia.' I seen the label on the bottle after he drank it."

Seasonable Entertainments and Suggestions for Social Functions

By EDITH A. BROWN
Society Editor of the Chicago Record-Herald.

Appropriate Entertainment for Early Autumn—Horn of Plenty, Fruit and Grains for Decoration—A "Live Magazine" for Home, Church or Club Affairs—Young People Pose to Represent Title, Frontispiece, Advertisements and Book Reviews.

Along about this time of the year the farmers are gathering in the last of their grain, apples and other fruits are being stowed away for the winter's use, and vegetables, too, have reached their climax. It is the season of plenty, and a "harvest dinner" not only will be apropos, but very easily arranged. Not many guests should be bidden, for the service naturally must be plentiful, and too many guests will bring too great a display of food to be appetizing. As nearly as possible have a representative of all the fruits, vegetables and grains on the table, either in decoration or actual service.

For the table decoration have a horn of plenty filled with fruits, and hung from the chandelier. Immediately beneath arrange a mound of bouquets of the grains—wheat, oats and the like. On the stem of each fruit which is placed in the central horn of plenty tie a narrow ribbon, which will lead to a cover. At the "cover" end of the ribbon a paper horn of plenty with the name of guest written thereon or a tiny horn of plenty, with the name thrust in the horn, may be used as the place card.

For the first course serve watermelon in the old-fashioned southern or farm style. Cut the melon lengthwise, not removing the rind before serving. Chicken or tomato soup may follow, with all the relishes of the season. For August the fish course may be omitted, if desired, and the meat course may follow the soup. For this serve crown of lamb with mint sauce. Shredded potatoes, green peas and corn boiled on the cob and replaced in the original husk for serving will serve as the vegetables for this course. Pineapple or raspberry sherbet, likewise, will make a good dish for the meat course. The salad should be a combination of all the fresh vegetables, sliced together and served with French or mayonnaise dressing, the French preferred.

The dessert course may be frozen peaches, cakes and coffee, and for the very last bring in a great plate of the early nuts. Then ask the guests to pull the ribbons bearing their place cards, and the fruit from the horn of plenty will come tumbling to their places. As the table will be cleared except for the plate of nuts, no damage can be done, and conjecture will be rife as to what each one will draw from the horn of plenty for the final course. The same idea in decoration—the horns of plenty and the use of grain and fruit—may be carried out throughout the rooms of the house, if desired.

A Literary Evening.

The ever-new but old idea of the magazine as a means of entertainment may be arranged in a somewhat new form for a summer's evening at a home church or club affair. Starting with the old idea of erecting a frame for the posing of the contents of the magazine, name the publication according to the place wherein you reside or to the event to be considered. Announce the issue as the late summer book number.

Friends of the host and hostess, or young people of the town, should be dressed and posed to represent some well-known books, and the object will be to make the guests guess the titles from the living pictures. The first picture, of course, will announce the title of the magazine merely. If the affair is to be used as a money-making scheme, local advertisements may be used at intervals, but if not, the book number should begin at once. The frontispiece of the magazine may be one of the book titles, or it may be the photograph of a very well-known author or poet. The guests must write the name of the man or woman shown on the paper which has been furnished each, as the first answer.

As the magazine is to be made the chief feature of the evening, some 15 or 20 pictures should be shown.

For the first Tarlington's "The Beautiful Lady" may be shown as a sweet-faced, white-haired old lady—an old-fashioned grandmother. A dashing young woman, too, might be used to represent this title, but no two people bear the same ideas as to real beauty, whereas the old lady of the type mentioned appeals to all.

Major's "When Knighthood Was in Flower" can be made into a beautiful living picture—a young man in colonial costume, kissing the hand of a maiden in the costume of the same period—a bit of gallantry which is well-nigh obsolete in this day.

Another of Tarlington's—"The Gentleman from Indiana," can be used as the first bit of comedy in the magazine—a typical Hoosier may be shown, with pencil and pad, bringing out the idea of the "state of authors," as Indiana is known.

Connor's "The Prospector" may be the means of showing a picture of a true wild western miner with pick and shovel.

Wister's "The Virginian" may picture the man of the plains in his most romantic dress, or the typical old Virginia gentleman may be shown to represent this stirring title.

Barrie's "Little Minister" is too suggestive a title to need aid in posing, and so, likewise, is Mrs. Gray's "Heavenly Twins," although both will be capital for the magazine.

Long's "Madame Butterfly" will make an effective picture—a dainty maiden dressed in Japanese costume, with butterflies in her hair, on the paper flower bushes which may grow about her, and in the design of her dress. This idea, too, might be worked out in the modern society matron, but the picture would not be as pretty.

Connor's "Man from Glengarry" brings in another type—the lumberman; and Doyle's "Study in Scarlet" may produce a Parisian dancer in her scarlet ballet dress, or a modern young woman in red will suffice as well.

Holland's "Bitter Sweet" may be the comedy vehicle again, if a pretty and otherwise sweet young woman—one known to be sweet of disposition—may be posed with a very bitter frown upon her pretty face.

Miss Johnston's "To Have and to Hold" is ideal for a mother and child picture—a reproduction of Mrs. Vonnoh's little statuette of a young mother holding her babe would be most attractive.

Parker's "Seats of the Mighty" may be an empty throne, and Rostand's "Cyrano" will make an excellent character picture.

More fun may be produced by Herick's "The Common Lot," or Doyle's "Sign of the Four." The first may picture a man perched on a high stool in front of a desk covered with papers. With a pencil behind each ear he is "digging" away with might and main. The last may be worked out by posing four folk with talent for pantomime.

Caine's "The Christian" may show another old lady picture—an elderly woman, seated with her little in her lap. "Under the Red Robe" is easily illustrated, while "Under Two Flags" will make an attractive military picture.

The series may close with Miss Schreiner's "Black Beauty," showing a young man or woman with blackened face, and dressed in the very height of fashion, which may serve as the last funny picture, and Miss Alcott's "Old-Fashioned Girl" which needs no description, as the final "sweet young girl" picture.

When the magazine has come to an end, each guest writes his or her name on the slip of paper which has been given them for their answers, and the slips are exchanged among the guests for examination. Then the index of the magazine appears as the last leaf, and the papers are corrected. The most successful contestant is given a late novel or some attractive book, and the "Funny Dictionary" will serve as a booby prize.

What He Would Say.

The late Francis Coggin for a long time was a director of the Indian Head National bank, Nashua, N. H. During the last years of his directorship the present cashier, Ira P. Harris, was at the head of the institution. It was Mr. Coggin's custom to visit the bank daily, and invariably as he opened the door he would say, in tones that could be heard all over the bank, "Is Ira in?" Mr. Harris grew very tired of this, much to the amusement of the rest of the bank. Finally the phrase came to be a by-word with them.

During the summer preceding his death Mr. Coggin looked very bad, but was able to get out and make his usual visits to the bank. One hot day in July the clerks were sweltering over their work, when in walked Mr. Coggin, with his usual salutation, "Is Ira in?"

"Yes," said Mr. Harris, "I am here. It's a pretty hot day, isn't it?"

"Hot! You don't call this hot, do you? You ought to have been with me one summer down in Georgia."

And Mr. Coggin proceeded to tell what hot weather really was.

After he had gone out Mr. Harris spoke up as follows: "Doesn't Mr. Coggin look bad? I am afraid it won't be long before he will be where the weather will be hot enough for him."

"Yes," piped up the correspondence clerk, "and the first thing that he will say when he opens the door will be: 'Is Ira in?'"—Boston Herald.

Unanimous.

The late Lord Leighton, president of the Royal academy, once had a chance to learn something about himself that perhaps he had not suspected. His chance came to him at a picture-gallery, where his painting, "Helen of Troy," was on exhibition.

He joined a group of ladies who were standing before it just in time to hear one of the number say:

"It is a horrid picture, simply horrid."

"I'm sorry, but it's mine!" Lord Leighton exclaimed, involuntarily.

"You don't mean to say you've bought the thing?" questioned the same lady.

"No, I painted it," the artist humbly replied.

The critical lady was momentarily abashed; then she said, easily:

"Oh, you mustn't mind what I say."

"No, indeed, you mustn't," another began, earnestly. "She only said what everybody else is saying!"—Youth's Companion.

SUGGESTIONS FOR NOVEL AND PLEASING ENTERTAINMENTS.

Two Thoughtful Bon Voyage Gifts—A Delightful Lawn Party—Another Musical Game.

Two Bon Voyage Gifts. For a young boy who was going to Europe for six months a girl friend made this charming gift whereby many an hour was happily spent, and it provided amusement not only for him, but the grown-ups in the party enjoyed it quite as much.

It was a blank book, the first pages containing 90 cleverly illustrated book "titles." The "key" to this was given to the lad's mother. Then there were a number of pages ruled off forming a diary, covering the months of the journey.

After this came snap shots of his own house, the street on which he lived and of the children who were his playmates and friends. There were valentines from these chums, also Easter cards, April fool jokes and fourth of July souvenirs. The special pages were tied together with "not to be opened till the date," written on the page preceding, and the boy's birthday pages were concealed in the same manner. The other "going away" gift was arranged for a baby of three years, who was to make the long month's voyage to South America, and a friend provided a huge ball of worsted, with the instructions to unwind one "surprise" a day. The ball contained all sorts of little novelties, a top, dolls of various kinds, a tiny bottle of perfume, a gay handkerchief, knife, pair of round-pointed scissors, small boxes of odd shapes filled with bonbons, toy animals, and a coarse needle, threaded, and a number of large-hole buttons.

The mother said the "surprise ball" was reserved until everything else failed, then it provided amusement; and the last article was unwound as the steamer went into the harbor of Rio Janeiro, and life assumed a new interest in that strange land.

A Lawn Party.

Lawn parties for grown people and children are the popular form of amusement these days, and certainly there is nothing prettier in the entertainment line. With an abundance of lanterns, fairy lamps and electric lights, a comparatively small yard may be transformed into a bower of plenty of time for exercise in cool of summer day—what makes for grace.

The body needs air, exercise and rest, food, play and sleep during the warm days of summer as well as the cold days of winter; during the crisp, sparkling days of the late fall as well as the half sultry and wholly languorous days of the spring. The exercise, to be sure, should not be so violent and should have much of the real pleasure element in it, but it should be exercise and taken daily.

The time for it should also be wisely chosen during the warm days, for from the hours of eleven to three or four it is well to rest and the hammock, cool corner of the porch or shady nook in orchard or grove tempts one to settle down with book, fancy work or friends, and it is well to have plenty of such hours sprinkled generously through our summer's fun. But for bodily exercise (other than deep breathing, which may and should be indulged in at all hours and many times during the long warm days) the best time is in the early morning, when the air itself tempts one to motion, or in the late afternoon, for then it is that tennis, golf, field hockey, croquet, the bicycle, the saddle horse, the canoe or rowboat may be indulged in to the best advantage, or the long, brisk walk be taken, preceded or followed by gentle club swinging exercises and trunk bendings and turnings in all directions—arm and leg swinging—chest expansion and deep breathing work.

To be able to take healthy exercise and to look your prettiest at the same time is a combination of affairs well-nigh irresistible.

Even a fair-sized city yard provides space enough for archery or quoit throwing, although hardly enough for that ancient pastime of the Greeks, which has been recently revived both in England and America—throwing the discus.

The usual athletic costume may be used for archery, although any gown in which the arms have perfect freedom of movement is as comfortable for the performance.

The muscles of the arms, shoulders, back and neck are all developed and strengthened by this sport and the hollows of the neck filled out by it.

Pitching quoits is even better than bowling as an exercise, in that, while the motions are nearly enough the same to call out practically the same muscles, it is an outdoor game. Besides the direct benefit it has upon the general health and upon the development of neck and shoulders and arms, and especially for a hollow chest, there is indirect benefit gained in added grace and buoyancy of the whole body, which becomes pliant and supple if the sport is followed with any degree of regularity.

With a little practice the left arm may be used alternately with the right for the pitching, so that both sides of the body may be developed evenly.

As to discus throwing, the very fact that it is a revival of a Grecian sport is enough to commend it as productive of grace, for the Grecian men and women have furnished the ideal types of grace for the whole world.

Like quoit pitching, wrist, back and shoulders are all strengthened by the graceful swaying into which you unconsciously fall in your endeavor to get the quoit nearest the peg.

FINE SHOULDERS AND CHEST.

HON. W. H. KELBAUGH OF WEST VIRGINIA PRAISES PE-RU-NA.

Hon. W. H. Kelbaugh.

A Cold at Any Time of the Year, Especially in Hot Weather, is Very Disagreeable to the System. Pe-ru-na is an Unquestioned Tonic for Such Cases. Read What People Say About It.

Hon. W. H. Kelbaugh, Ex-Member W. Va. Legislature, 204 9th street, N. E., Washington, D. C., writes:

"You can use my name and word at all times for Pe-ru-na as a medicine and tonic unquestioned. I have tried it for a stubborn cold and badly run down system. I tried all sorts of other medicines and paid several expensive doctor bills. Pe-ru-na cured me, strengthened me more than ever, and saved me money."

Mrs. Clara Litterst, Seaford, Ind., says: "Last fall I took a severe cold. I took Pe-ru-na, began to improve and kept on so until I was able to do my work."

Fishermen Using Motor Boats.
Iceland's fishermen have taken to using motor boats in their business. Automobiles and motor boats have also made their way to Helsingfors, Finland.

For Twenty Years.
Other chill remedies have sprung up, flourished for a brief season, then passed away—even from memory—but for twenty long years Cheatham's Chill Tonic has been in the field of action. The reason is simple. It has the merit. It actually cures Chills and Fevers, while the majority of others merely promise to. One bottle guaranteed to cure any one case.

SANE SENTIMENTS.

The black sheep in every family was once the most petted lamb.

Did you ever notice that the size of trouble depends on whether it is coming or going?

Beware of the man who boasts of his good deeds; he probably only awaits a favorable opportunity to do a mean one.

English the World Language.
The new world language, Esperanto, seems to have already won more advocates than the older Volapuk. No manufactured language, however, seems to have much chance in competition with English, which long ago displaced French as the most useful and widely spoken language and which is gaining faster than ever in all parts of the world. Quite recently the German government has ordered that all railway officials and employees must learn to speak English. In Antwerp also the authorities are urging all classes to study English and are providing special facilities in the public schools; the city has become "almost an English-speaking port." In Japan all school children are now obliged to learn our language. A few years hence tourists from this country will be able to get along there as easily as on a trip at home. With Great Britain, India, Australia, Canada, the United States and large sections of Africa using English, what hope is there for any other language?

"NO TROUBLE"

to Change from Coffee to Postum.

"Postum has done a world of good for me," writes an Ills. man.

"I've had indigestion nearly all my life but never dreamed coffee was the cause of my trouble until last Spring I got so bad I was in misery all the time."

"A coffee drinker for 30 years, it irritated my stomach and nerves, yet I was just crazy for it. After drinking it with my meals, I would leave the table, go out and lose my meal and the coffee too. Then I'd be as hungry as ever."

"A friend advised me to quit coffee and use Postum—said it cured him. Since taking his advice I retain my food and get all the good out of it, and don't have those awful hungry spells."

"I changed from coffee to Postum without any trouble whatever, felt better from the first day I drank it. I am well now and give the credit to Postum." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich. Read the little book, "The Road to Wellville," in pkg. "There's a reason."

MODERN SHADES OF MEANING.

Words of English Language That Have Improved With Age.

Why is a poodle so called? Some one says: "Probably the natural answer would recall the old lady who said that no credit could be given to Adam for naming the pig, since anybody would know what to call it. 'Poodle' seems so obvious a name for this dog. And, in fact, this is not far from the truth about the origin of the word. It is quite recent in English, not being found before 1864, apparently. It is the German 'pudel,' which comes from the low German, 'pudeln,' to waddle, and the dog must have been so called, as Skeat says, either because he waddles after his master or because he looks fat and clumsy on account of his thick hair."

"Nice" is one of the exceptional words which have risen on the scale and improved with age. It is from the latin 'nescius' and originally signified ignorant. To Chaucer it regularly meant foolish—"wise and nothing nice." In Spenser's time it still meant effeminate. From general foolishness there was probably first a specialization to foolish fussiness about trifles. Then the idea of ignorance dropped out, and the word meant particular about details, accurate. It was creditable to be a "nice" observer or to show "nice" judgment. And so in the end the positively agreeable meaning of to-day was evolved.

"Sculls" and "skulls" are one word in origin, and both at various times have been spelled capriciously with a "c" or a "k." Pepys, the diarist, tells how he went on the Thames at one time "in a scull," at another in a "skuller." The origin of the word is "skulle," or "sculle," a bowl or goblet. While the cranium was obviously bowl-like in shape, a distant resemblance to a bowl was also detected in the scooped-out blade of a "scull," as opposed to the flat blade of our propeller.

GENTLE REMINDER FOR PAPA.

Robbie Uneasy Over Time It Took to Make Printing Press.

One day papa took Robbie down to see the presses print the books and papers and pictures, and the little boy was much interested.

"Papa," said he, "let me come down every day and run the presses."

"O, I couldn't do that," said his papa, "but maybe I'll have a little printing press made for you, just your size."

The weeks and months passed away and papa forgot all about his promise, but Robbie didn't. It was fully a year later that he came home from Sunday school and said: "Papa, teacher said that God made the world in six days. Is that so?"

"I guess it is," said papa.

"The water and the dirt and the trees, and the dogs and birds' nests, and everything?"

"Yes."

"Gee, whiz!" said Robbie, "that was quick work. Six days to make all the world, and you've been a year and ain't got that printin' press done yet!"

—The American Boy.

One Side of the Mouth.

Did you ever meet a stranger who talked from one side of his mouth, usually in an undertone and with his eyes wandering while talking? The man's manner is not an indication that he is weighing his words or has something important to tell. It is almost a sure sign that he has spent years in jail. This manner of talking is acquired in prison, where conversation among prisoners is prohibited and where the men have to talk out of one side of their mouths in order to prevent the keeper from noticing that conversation is going on. The habit sticks to the convicts for years after they get out.

Differently Expressed.

Two groups of people were seated in the waiting room of a railroad station. One consisted of a young man and two young ladies dressed in the height of fashion, the other a man and his wife not so fashionably attired.

They had been there only a few minutes when a girl came in whose complexion was as nearly perfect as anything in this world ever is. While she was buying her ticket the young man remarked to the ladies with him: "Isn't Miss Cranford a beauty? Her complexion is as perfect as a rose."

At the same time the other man clutched his wife's arm and whispered: "Lord, Nan, hasn't that gal got purty hide?"—Lippincott's Magazine.

Profit in Insurance Schemes.

"The profit on all kinds of insurance is great," said a statistician. "For example, accident insurance. It is all betting, and the average bet made by the accident companies is $1,000 against $4 that you don't die by accident during the year."

"Suppose a company has 40,000,000 subscribers. Its income then is, at $4 for each $1,000 policy, $160,000,000. Statistics show that among 40,000,000 people only 15,000 die by accident. Thus the company pays out but $15,000,000, leaving a gross annual profit of $145,000,000. Insurance is a very good thing, but the rates ought to be lowered tremendously."

Youthful Training.

"Every boy should learn to swim." "I don't know," answered the man who cultivates differences of opinion. "The boy who can't swim keeps away from deep water. I'd rather have my boy put in his time practicing the art of dodging trolley cars and automobiles."

What Joy They Bring To Every Home

as with joyous hearts and smiling faces they romp and play—when in health—and how conducive to health the games in which they indulge, the outdoor life they enjoy, the cleanly, regular habits they should be taught to form and the wholesome diet of which they should partake. How tenderly their health should be preserved, not by constant medication, but by careful avoidance of every medicine of an injurious or objectionable nature, and if at any time a remedial agent is required, to assist nature, only those of known excellence should be used; remedies which are pure and wholesome and truly beneficial in effect, like the pleasant laxative remedy, Syrup of Figs, manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co. Syrup of Figs has come into general favor in many millions of well informed families, whose estimate of its quality and excellence is based upon personal knowledge and use.

Syrup of Figs has also met with the approval of physicians generally, because they know it is wholesome, simple and gentle in its action. We inform all reputable physicians as to the medicinal principles of Syrup of Figs, obtained, by an original method, from certain plants known to them to act most beneficially and presented in an agreeable syrup in which the wholesome Californian blue figs are used to promote the pleasant taste; therefore it is not a secret remedy and hence we are free to refer to all well informed physicians, who do not approve of patent medicines and never favor indiscriminate self-medication.

Please to remember and teach your children also that the genuine Syrup of Figs always has the full name of the Company—California Fig Syrup Co.—plainly printed on the front of every package and that it is for sale in bottles of one size only. If any dealer offers any other than the regular Fifty cent size, or having printed thereon the name of any other company, do not accept it. If you fail to get the genuine you will not get its beneficial effects. Every family should always have a bottle on hand, as it is equally beneficial for the parents and the children, whenever a laxative remedy is required.

DAZED WITH PAIN.

The Sufferings of a Citizen of Olympia, Wash.

L. S. Gorham, of 516 East 4th St., Olympia, Wash., says: "Six years ago I got wet and took cold, and was soon flat in bed, suffering tortures with my back. Every movement caused an agonizing pain, and the persistence of it exhausted me, so that for a time I was dazed and stupid. On the advice of a friend I began using Doan's Kidney Pills, and soon noticed a change for the better. The kidney secretions had been disordered and irregular, and contained a heavy sediment, but in a week's time the urine was clear and natural again and the passages regular. Gradually the aching and soreness left my back and then the lameness. I used six boxes to make sure of a cure, and the trouble has never returned."

Will Widen Kiel Canal.

The ever-increasing dimensions of war vessels has led the German government to conclude to widen the Kiel canal from 60 to 130 feet, and the width at the surface from 130 feet to 350 feet. The proposed improvements, it is estimated, will cost nearly $50,000,000.

CARLTON WEAVER.

GETTING WARM IN OSAGE.

Both Parties Trying to Pick Winners. Odds With Democrats.

Guthrie, Ok., Aug. 31.—The Republicans of the Osage nation are contending earnestly with the Democrats for the election of two delegates from that nation to the constitutional convention, as the race is waxing hot and hotter. It has been decided that John Leahy, of Pawhuska, will be one of the Democratic nominees. He is an intermarried citizen. The other nominee has not yet been settled upon.

The Republicans have about settled upon Isaac D. Taylor, a Pawhuska attorney, and Frank DeNoya, a mixed-blood Osage, living near Remington, as their candidates. The Democrats, however, are fighting Taylor on the ground that he is a railroad attorney, as he represents the Midland Valley at Pawhuska. He is also charged with being the "machine candidate," although Amos Ewing, one of McGuire's right hand men, is fighting Taylor hard.

The general impression seems to be that the Democrats will win. They are claiming it by 500 majority, while the Republicans will give no figures whatever to back up their claims. They maintain they will win by a small majority. By placing a mixed blood on the ticket, the Republicans expect to get the mixed-blood vote among the Indians, but by so doing the Democrats claim the fullbloods will be alienated.

Ardmore's First Bale.

Ardmore, I. T. Sept. 1.—The first bale of cotton of the Chickasaw nation's crop was brought in late last afternoon by C. S. Ferguson, a farmer residing five miles north of this city. The cotton will be sold today. It is reported that crop conditions have improved in the last week and that the outlook is flattering.

BUSY FOR DEMOCRACY.

Judge Furman Devoting His Talents to Party Success.

Judge Henry M. Furman, after spending a strenuous week speaking for Democracy in the northern part of the Territory under assignment of the state campaign committee, closed the week's tour at Collinsville today. The judge will rest at home Sunday.

If the constitutional convention should not be Democratic—a thing quite improbable—it will be through no fault of Henry M. Furman. On Monday he will resume his itinerary, which for the next two weeks is as follows:

Monday, Sept. 3, Holdenville; Tuesday, Sept. 4, Chandler; Wednesday, Sept. 5, Guthrie; Thursday, Sept. 6, Perry; Friday, Sept. 7, Blackburn; Saturday, Sept. 8, Cushing; Tuesday, Sept. 11, Miami; Wednesday, Sept. 12, Fairland; Thursday, Sept. 13, Pryor Creek; Friday, Sept. 14, Wagoner; Saturday, Sept. 15, Eufaula.

Cardwell at Home.

W. D. Cardwell took a short respite from his arduous duties at Democratic headquarters in Oklahoma City and ran down home for a few hours today. He had to return on the afternoon train. J. R. Lawrence for Delegate.

For the important office of constitutional delegate from the 87th district, the News is authorized to announce the name of J. R. Lawrence. He offers for the honor subject to the action of the Democratic primary.

Born 73 years ago in the Kiamisha mountains, Choctaw nation, Mr. Lawrence has resided continuously in the Territory, save for the time he spent at school in Texas and Kentucky. He is one-fourth Choctaw Indian blood. After having spent most of his life in Blue county he removed, fifteen years ago, to Pontotoc county, six miles from Ada. A year ago he came to town and established a home. All his life he has been a farmer and stock raiser.

Mr. Lawrence is by no means a stranger to public life. For two terms he was a member of the Choctaw legislature; was deputy national agent two terms; was timber inspector for a number of years; besides, he has occupied a number of minor public positions, among them that of Indian Police. But all these were held under Democratic administrations. "Uncle Joe," as Mr. Lawrence is familiarly known, declares emphatically he would not hold an office under a Republican administration. This affords some insight into the unquestionable character of his Democracy.

Though Mr. Lawrence has held many positions of trust among his people, his status as an influential citizen is not to be judged alone thereby. For years he has been a trusted counsellor of theirs, enjoying their fullest confidence, ever faithful in protecting them, to the utmost of his ability, against encroachments upon their rights. In such capacity he has mingled much with the white man, has become quite conversant with affairs of government, has learned the virtues of both races, and has acquired a thorough knowledge of conditions existing in Indian Territory.

Thus equipped Uncle Joe is well qualified to aid in the constructive work incident to the constitutional convention, in the picturesque and delicate task of finishing the political merger of the two races. With his wide acquaintance in this country and his numerous friends, he should prove a formidable candidate for the Democratic nomination. And the nomination, of course, is tantamount to election.

AN AGED TOURIST.

An Octogenarian Walking from Denver to Hartshorne Passes through Ada.

There passed through Ada, Friday, one David Garrett, aged 83 years, who left Denver, Col., May 15th, on foot, with Hartshorne, I. T., as his destination.

J. H. Cyfert overtook the old gentleman near town and gave him a lift as far as Ahloso. During the drive the latter talked interestingly of his long walk. His children with whom he had lived in Denver deciding to move farther west, he balked and packed up his belongings and started for Hartshorne. He has money with which to ride, the old fellow declared, but prefers to walk and save it. He has had a fine trip, he assured Mr. Cyfert, "Lots of fun" was the expression. "Never slept out a single night, seldom any body would accept my money; was given occasional lifts along the road, but for the most part walked." Mr. Cyfert says uncle Daniel was remarkably spry for his age, that the pack he carried weighed nearly a hundred pounds. The last he saw of the venerable pedestrian he was clipping it eastward down the dusty road with his pack and telescope.
